Grandstand at Ellenville Track Destroyed by Fire

Ulster County Fair Will be Held There as Planned August 24 to 27 Inclusive—Stables, Judges' Stand and Nearby Residence Also Destroyed.

Sunday afternoon during the progress of a baseball game between Ellenville and Poughkeepsie the grand stand at the Ulster County Fair Grounds at Ellenville caught fire and before the fire could be subdued the stand, stables and judges' stand across the track had been destroyed and the David Freer residence across the track was very badly damaged. Frank Rainer's house was badly scorched and burned and only the combined efforts of the Ellenville and Napanoch fire departments prevented a still greater loss of property. At the time there was some wind blowing and the Freer house was directly in the path of the flames.

How the fire started is not known but it is probable that someone in the excitement of the twelfth-inning tie dropped a cigar or cigarette butt. Under the stand there were offices used by the Ulster County Agricultural Society during fair week, the box office and storage space. Two hundred fifty chairs, office furnishings and a sprinkling cart were destroyed by the fire.

Hold County Fair As Usual.

The loss is estimated by the officials of the society at approximately $9,000, with some insurance. The immediate loss, however, is not the only loss to the society. With the annual fair but a month off and many of the shows and concessions already booked, the plans for the fair will go on. One of the big attractions at the fair, however, is the horse racing and one of the sources of revenue is the sale of grand stand seats for the races. But the society does not intend to let the loss by fire interfere with the fair and the usual high class attractions, which with the exhibits and other features, promise to be "bigger and better than ever before."

A meeting has been called by the officials for this evening and at that time the matter of erecting bleachers for use during fair week, August 24 to 27, inclusive, will be discussed. It is expected that suitable bleachers will be erected in time to use them during fair week.

Flames Spread Rapidly.

The fire Sunday was first discovered when in the twelfth inning of a very exciting ball game a wisp of smoke was observed coming from the end of the stand where several hundred people were anxiously watching the outcome of a tie game. The attention of an official was called to the smoke and one of the occupants of the stand replied that it was smoke from a cigar or cigarette butt and that he would put it out.

Five minutes later the stand was in flames and there was a rush to clear the structure.

By the time the firemen arrived the fire had gained great headway. Aided by a wind the flames swept through the stand and lack of water pressure prevented more efficient work by the firemen. The blaze communicated to the stables and to the judges' stand across the track as well as to the nearby residence properties. The attention of the firemen was directed to saving surrounding buildings and by efficient work the flames were checked.

Hay Had Been Moved.

At the time of the fire there was no hay stored in the grand stand building, it having been but recently moved to the new stables.

The grand stand was a frame structure with a capacity of about 2,000.

Four horses in the stables owned by John Wynkoop and Joseph Coughlin were saved.

AERIAL GYMNASTS INJURED IN FALL.

Chicago, July 26.—Maud and Frank Cromwell, aerial gymnasts, are today in St. Luke's Hospital broken and shattered of body. While doing their final Chicago appearance in Ringling Brothers' circus they plunged from a broken trapeze forty-five feet into the tanbark of the arena.

A gasp of horror was uttered by 12,000 spectators who witnessed the fall. The steel hook that held the trapeze to the mast snapped and Mrs. Cromwell slipped and fell, her husband instinctively grasped for her and in so doing lost his own hold and plunged in her wake. Doctors announce their condition as critical.

Citizens' Band Busy.

The Citizens' Band will hold a rehearsal this evening at 8 o'clock at the Elks' Club. Director Mahrenholtz asks every member of the band to be present as they have a number of engagements during the month of August. The band will play again this year for the Ulster County Fair at Ellenville.

Judge Van Buren On Police Bench

Assistant City Judge Presided in Police Court—Sentenced Negro to Albany Penitentiary and Disposed of Other Cases.

Judge Augustus H. Van Buren, assistant city judge, presided in police court today as Judge Augustus Shufeldt had been called out of town on business, and disposed of several cases.

William Long, a negro arrested by Louis Sampson, another negro, at Terry's brickyard Saturday and turned over to the police, was found guilty of assault in the third degree, and sentenced to ninety days in the Albany penitentiary. Long, it was claimed, had a gun but when searched by the police no weapon was found on him. He also had a quart bottle of gin.

Arthur Pennington, a young man residing at Ulster Park, was arrested by Officer Bowser at McEntee street and Broadway. The young man had cut the traffic standard at Washington avenue and North Front street and drove downtown at the rate of 45 miles an hour. Judge Van Buren in imposing a fine of $5 warned the young man that he was lucky to escape a jail sentence.

Dr. Lee W. Doxtaker of New York, Sanford McKeever of New York, Ralph Shiffel of White Plains and Herbert Schuldenfrie of Plainfield, N. J., all arrested for speeding here, forfeited $15 cash bail each by non-appearance in police court.

Walter Harwisch of Newark, N. J., arrested for speeding, furnished cash bail for his appearance on July 29.

Jacob S. Hausman of Richmond Hill, arrested by Charles Thiel on a charge of reckless driving, furnished $50 cash bail for his appearance Tuesday. Mr. Thiel claimed that Hausman attempted to pass three cars on the Wurts street hill and collided with his car and a car of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company.

Joyce Hawley to Face Alienists

Chicago, July 26.—Joyce Hawley, famed bather in wine-filled bathtub, today must face three alienists here who will determine whether or not she is sane.

This latest ordeal of Earl Carroll's protege is the aftermath of an overdose of veronal which she swallowed yesterday in her rooms at the Hotel Sherman. Instead of sleep, hysteria overcame the girl and for two hours in a rambling monologue she warned girls against seeking the "bright lights," told of her difficulties, asserted that she was broke and several other entertaining things.

Removed to the hospital, the staff physician, Dr. Carl A. Meyer sought to question her. He asked her a number of questions in order to determine her general knowledge. Joyce didn't know who was the governor of Illinois, the mayor of Chicago and added that she didn't care.

"I live in New York," Joyce flung at her questioner. "Jimmy Walker is the mayor there and New York is the only town I care about."

Dr. Meyer after the examination asserted that a thorough investigation of her mental processes was advisable. She was then removed to the Psychopathic Hospital.

Navigation Craft Alone 14 Months

New Bedford, Mass., July 26.—Fourteen months on the high seas, between Seattle and this famous whaling port, Captain Thomas Drake sailed his little schooner Pilgrim, singing this paraphrase of Gilbert and Sullivan's jingle:

"For I am the cook and the captain bold and the mate of my pilgrim ship; the bosun tight and the midship mite and the crew of the little clip."

Perhaps the spectre of Sir Francis Drake, ancestor of the Seattle seaman, held the tiller while "Cap'n Tom" slept or while he was in the rigging.

But "Cap'n Tom" was safe in port today to look over the Charles W. Morgan, America's oldest whaling ship, which, according to marine tradition often chased "Moby Dick", the whale-terror, immortalized in fiction.

The Charles W. Morgan is now a permanent memorial at the round hills estate of Colonel E. H. R. Green, son of the late Hetty Green.

It was to look over the famous old whaling craft that Captain Drake weathered many a gale alone in the run here from Seattle.

Two Killed When Car Hits Pole

Tracey Van de Mark of Kingston and Edsoll J. Ernhout of Lyonsville Crash Into Telegraph Pole on Alligerville-High Falls Road.

Tracey Van de Mark, 18 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Golden Van de Mark, of 101 North Front street, this city and Edsoll J. Ernhout, 21 years old, of Lyonsville, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ernhout of Monticello, were killed shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday morning when a Ford coupe in which they were returning from a dance at Alligerville collided with a pole on the Alligerville-High Falls road near the Trowbridge farm.

The two young men had been attending a dance at the Knights of Pythias Hall in Alligerville and were on their way home when the accident happened. Ernhout was driving the car at the time.

The Ford car left the roadway and traveled some distance along the ditch before it collided with a pole, resulting in the infliction of such serious injuries that the two young men were dead when they arrived at the Kingston City Hospital where they were taken immediately after their discovery.

Friends Heard Crash.

Kenneth Otis of this city and Fred DuBois had left the dance a short time prior to the other two young men. They stopped along the road to make repairs to a tire on their car. While so engaged they heard the approach of the Ford driven by Ernhout and also the crash which took place some distance away. Both rushed to the scene and found Ernhout, who had been driving, lying on the ground. Van de Mark was crumpled up inside the car on the floor with his head bent back over the gasoline tank. Both apparently were alive but seriously injured.

Assistance was summoned from a nearby farm house and William Wood, who was passing in a car, rushed Ernhout to Dr. Oliver's residence, but finding no one there he turned about and started for the Kingston City Hospital. Ernhout was dead before the hospital was reached. His skull was fractured, his neck broken and his arms were also broken.

Ora Dietz who was passing in another car, picked up Van de Mark and rushed him to the Kingston City Hospital, but his passenger, too, was dead when the hospital was reached. Death was caused by a crushed head, broken leg and other injuries.

Funerals of Victims.

Coroner W. N. Conner was called and after making a preliminary examination turned the body of Van de Mark over to Coroner Howard R. Humiston of Kerhonkson. The body of Ernhout was taken in charge by Coroner Conner who later turned it over to Undertaker Lamont Mitchell of Monticello. The funeral of Ernhout will be held from the family residence at Monticello.

The funeral of Tracey Van de Mark will be held Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the residence of his parents, 101 North Front street, with interment in Fairview Cemetery, Stone Ridge.

Both David Coughlin and Nellie Piper, Ellsworth High School sophomores, discovered in the woods, nearly starving, following a five-day search and locked up in Washington country jail to await the arrival of their parents, declared that some day they will wed.

The youthful couple, who left word that they would take their lives if pursued but failed to carry out their threat, told authorities that starvation failed to dampen the ardor of their love.

Abe Lincoln's Son Robert Dies At Summer Home

Son of Late President Abraham Lincoln Dies in 83rd Year—Served Country as Army Captain, Secretary of War and Minister to Great Britain.

Manchester, Vt., July 26.—Robert Lincoln, son of the late President Abraham Lincoln, died today at his summer home here at the age of eighty-three years.

The son of "Honest Abe", served his country as an army captain, secretary of war under President Garfield and minister to Great Britain under President Harrison.

For many years Robert Lincoln was identified with the Pullman Company, first as attorney and later as president, until he retired from active business and professional life in 1906.

During the last year of the Civil War, Robert Lincoln was a captain under General Grant and he brought to his father the first news of the Petersburg affray.

Robert was with his father when he was shot and was at his bedside during his last hours.

He was educated at Phillips Exeter Academy, University of Illinois and Harvard.

Robert Lincoln was minister to Great Britain from 1889 to 1893 under President Harrison. This followed his term as Secretary of War under President Garfield.

Upon his return from London, he took up the active practice of law and became counsel for the Pullman Company.

He married Miss Mary Harlan, daughter of United States Senator James Harlan of Iowa, and they had three children.

Some years ago Robert Lincoln was mentioned as a presidential candidate and received a few votes in the Republican national convention. Later he was honored as a presidential elector from Illinois.

The end came peacefully today in the Lincoln summer home at the foothills of the Green Mountains. Heart failure was given as the cause of death.

Robert Lincoln, the only surviving son of the late president, was discovered dead by servants.

Mr. Lincoln came here on May 12, from his winter home in Washington.

Two of his children survive him.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, it was stated at the Lincoln home this afternoon.

Brennan Startles Illinois Probers

Before Inquiry Is Started By Revealing That Samuel Insull Spent at Least $140,000 In the Senatorial Campaign.

Chicago, July 26.—The first sensation in the senate investigation in the Illinois senatorial primary came before the inquiry started today when George E. Brennan, victor in the Democratic primary, revealed that Samuel Insull, multimillionaire public utility magnate, had spent at least $140,000 in the senatorial campaign.

Brennan told the International News Service he would testify that Insull gave him $15,000 and that he "knew" that Insull had given $125,000 to the campaign fund of Frank L. Smith, who won the Republican primary.

Brennan said he would not hesitate to tell about Insull's contribution to his own fund.

"I got $15,000 from Mr. Insull early in the campaign," Brennan told the International News Service. "I know he also gave $125,000 to Mr. Smith."

Insull thus contributed to the funds of both Republican and Democratic victors in the recent primaries, according to Brennan.

The hearing was late getting started as members of the committee did not reach Chicago until the middle of the forenoon.

A small army of Chicago politicians thronged the federal court room where the hearing was held.

Reports that extra guards were placed around the courtroom were laughed at by Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, chairman.

Two gray-haired, rotund court attaches were the only "guards" and their chief concern was to prevent smoking in the court room. Reports that special guards had "bristled" all night for guns only drew a smile from the attaches.

SUNDAY MORNING FIRE ON GAGE STREET CAUSED ALARM.

Churchill Replies To Senator Borah

British Chancellor Wants Borah to State Definitely the Basis for His Charge That He Is Conducting a "Vilification Campaign."

London, July 26.—The Honorable Winston Spencer Churchill, Chancellor of the British Exchequer, today called upon Senator William E. Borah of Idaho to "call his shots."

Churchill wants the senator to state definitely the basis for his charge that the British Chancellor is conducting a "campaign of vilification" against the United States.

Having read the statement issued by Senator Borah on Saturday night, charging him with a "campaign of vilification," Churchill today issued the following statement:

"I invite the senator to quote from any passage of any statement of mine, upon which he relies for justification of such a complaint."

Although Churchill did not say so in so many words he appeared willing to enter into an international debate with Senator Borah, and if the Idahoan specifically states the utterances of Churchill which he believes amount to "vilification" the chancellor will have a further statement to make.

The statement issued by Senator Borah attracted considerable attention in the London Press today, as it was received too late to get more than brief notice in the Sunday newspapers.

Although the British newspapers have decried the revival of the debt controversy the statement of Senator Borah seems to have given the discussion new life.

"The Morning Post" today carries under a Washington date line, a dispatch which declares that "not a penny of the debt was ever cancelled, as all that was done was to juggle the figures.' This dispatch also states that Premier Baldwin threatened to quit Washington before he secured the terms which were finally incorporated in the Anglo-American debt agreement.

The statement made by Churchill today, in reply to Senator Borah, was regarded as personal and not in any measure a government action.

Knowing full well the temperament of both Churchill and Senator Borah, the British public awaits with interest the next development.

PROSPERITY RESULT OF INCREASED EFFICIENCY

Washington, July 26.—Increased efficiency in commerce and industry was responsible for the banner prosperity in 1925, according to the Department of Commerce.

"Considered as an entirety the industry and commerce of the United States during 1925 reached the highest levels ever attained in our history, not even excepting the years of abnormal war activity," said the department's yearbook.

"Save for the fact that part of the great increase in value of imports of 1925 was due to unreasonable price advances brought about by foreign governmental control of commodities, the conditions of American foreign trade last year were exceptionally favorable."

New York, July 26.—The fate of William V. Dwyer and his seven co-defendants charged with operation of a $25,000,000 rum ring, was in the hands of the jury.

There were three counts in the indictment. Each one, on conviction, carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

Despite United States Attorney Buckner's plea for conviction of the "higher-ups in the national liquor traffic," defense attorneys were confident of an acquittal. Betting commissioners were laying odds of 10 to 1 against conviction, and 25 to 1 that the jury would disagree.

Early Returns Favor Moody

Incomplete Returns Give Dan Moody Not Only a Substantial Plurality Over Governor "Ma" Ferguson, But Also a Majority.

Ft. Worth, Tex., July 26.—Newspaper editors and civic leaders throughout Texas today called upon Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, who faces overwhelming defeat in Saturday's Democratic primary at the hands of Dan Moody, youthful attorney general, to resign immediately, as she agreed in a challenge to Moody at the beginning of the campaign.

As returns were tabulated, Moody appeared to have not only a substantial plurality, but results from more than 200 counties gave him a majority, making a run-off unnecessary if his lead held the ratio.

Mrs. Ferguson early in her campaign for re-election challenged Moody that if she was beaten by "just one vote" she would "step down and out" provided Moody would agree to resign if she led him by 25,000 votes. Moody accepted. "Ma" and "Pa" Ferguson reiterated their challenge only a week ago.

Returns from 238 out of 252 counties, including 56 complete, gave Moody a majority of 1,145 votes, shortly before noon.

The totals at that hour were as follows:

Moody, 341,091.
Mrs. Ferguson, 231,060.
Lynch Davidson, 101,226.
The Rev. O. F. Zimmerman, 2,109.
Mrs. Edith Williams, 3,688.
Mrs. K. H. Johnston, withdrawn, 1,863.

Returns from 114 counties, including 56 complete, show the following totals for candidates in the Republican primary:

For governor: H. H. Haines, 6,963; E. P. Scott, 2,863.

Believe 'Road Hog' Caused 5 Deaths

Ohio Accident Sunday In Which Five Were Killed and One Probably Fatally Hurt—Car Plunged Over Embankment Upon B. & O. Railroad Tracks.

Cleveland, O., July 26.—City and county authorities today were searching for the "road hog" driver who, they believe caused the accident early Sunday on the Jennings Road east of Riverside Cemetery when an automobile carrying six persons plunged over a 20-foot embankment upon the B. & O. Railroad tracks killing five of its occupants and probably fatally injuring the sixth.

The dead:

Mrs. Lennie McGee, 31, mother of four children.
Elmer H. Preichel, 36.
Miss Esther May Wilson, 17.
Boyd K. Wagner, 24.
Louis Feuerstein, 25.

Joseph Lisy, 31, was believed dying in city hospital today from a fractured skull and other injuries.

The accident was discovered by a B. & O. brakeman who was riding on an engine. He saw the automobile lying near the tracks its wheels pointing skyward. Investigation showed the five bodies and the injured men underneath the car.

Jennings Road is barely wide enough to permit two cars to pass each other. Police think a road hog sideswiped the Preichel car and forced it over the embankment.

Seek Girl in Prison Plot

Detroit, July 26.—A 20-year-old girl, driver of a $6,000 sport car is sought today as the instigator and leader of a thwarted plot to liberate 14 county jail prisoners early today.

According to Sheriff George Walters, this girl, the wife of one of the 14 prisoners, was seen cruising around the jail early this morning followed by another machine operated by a boy.

The plot was uncovered when a turnkey discovered that two bars had been sawed from the cell block proper and that two other bars in a window had also been removed.

George Brady, held on a federal automobile theft charge, admitted that several saws had been smuggled to him in loaves of bread, according to Sheriff Walters. The prisoners were to have gained the street by lowering themselves down blankets, he said. These then were to have been met by the two automobiles and transferred to speed boats across the river to Canada.

29 Dead of Wood Alcohol Poisoning Over Week End

Poison Liquor-Gin Kills 12 in Buffalo, Four in Lockport, N. Y., and 13 in Toronto—Police Seeking "Wood Alcohol King."

Twenty-nine persons were killed over the week-end in Buffalo, N. Y., and surrounding towns in the United States and across the border in Canada, by drinking poison liquor-gin made from redistilled wood alcohol from which all the poison had not been removed.

Arrests of alleged alcohol bootleggers already have been made, and police are seeking James Voelker, said to be the "wood alcohol king" who supplied speakeasies with the deadly drinks.

Authorities in Buffalo announced that they will seek at least thirty indictments, of which a number will be for murder.

General Williams, commissioner of the Provincial Police, announced in Toronto that he will make a personal investigation, and issued sweeping orders for a clean-up.

Numerous speakeasies, camouflaged as soda fountains, have been closed throughout the area affected, and these are blamed for dispensing the deadly alcohol.

Many persons are ill and blind from drinking the poisonous concoction, and further deaths may result.

Buffalo N. Y., July 26.—With twelve dead in Buffalo and four victims claimed in Lockport, N. Y., from wood alcohol poisoning, a drive against the "speakeasies" and bootleggers in the vicinity was under way today in an effort to run down the source of the death-dealing liquor.

A score of places in the Black Rock section, scene of most of the casualties, were closed.

An international dragnet has been spread by police and federal authorities for James Voelker, alleged monarch of alcohol peddlers in the region of the border.

A raid on Voelker's home here uncovered a redistilling plant together with important statistics, according to police. Voelker has disappeared.

Evidence already gathered will result in the asking of at least thirty indictments. It was announced by the federal authorities.

Victim Gives First "Tips."

The first real "tip off" on the source of supply of the wood alcohol was received when James Murphy staggered into the office of Deputy Chief Carr and stated that he had been poisoned by gin he drank at a party.

Carr put the man in his automobile and was directed to the house where the party had taken place. Murphy collapsed just as the car stopped, and died on the way to the hospital.

In the house Carr arrested Carl Maischoss, who said he had obtained the gin from Voelker. Voelker's names was also brought into the case by Patsy Banos, proprietor of a "soft drink saloon."

Banos said that on July 18 Voelker called him and said he had some "A-1 stuff" just in from Germany. Banos ordered 240 gallons, he said, but when it was delivered found it unfit to drink. He asked Voelker about it, and was informed that "all foreign alcohol has a bad odor," he said.

13 Dead at Toronto.

Toronto, Ont., July 26.—With the toll from wood alcohol poisoning in Oakville, Toronto and other border cities reaching thirteen deaths, two young Toronto girls were added to the victims critically ill in hospitals today.

Gladys Guerin and Nora Connolly, both sixteen, were found blind after drinking home brew to which alcohol had been added in a Sackville street house. In the intensity of their pain the girls had scratched the paper from the walls.

Roy Woldrin, Oshawa, was held on the charge of supplying the alcohol.

Prohibition agents and local police are making every effort to discover the source of the poisoned liquor supply.

FAMILY FEUD CAUSED SHOOTING AND SUICIDE

Boston, July 26.—A family feud police said today, caused the shooting of Mrs. Mildred Crapo and the suicide of her step-father John R. Dority.

The woman, shot by Dority as she came here early today, is on the danger list at Elizabeth's Hospital, Brighton.

As Mrs. Crapo fell, probably fatally wounded, Dority fired at Mrs. Sarah Seaver, grandmother of Mrs. Crapo, but the bullet missed its mark. Dority then took his own life.

Ice Age May Return

There is no way of telling whether the ice age, so called, will return or what changes in the climate will occur in the future. It is known that the ice sheet invaded the northern part of the United States four or five times, and between these several invasions there were long intervals, during which the climate was as mild as now, and in some cases milder than it is at present. It is also known that the length of each of these interglacial stages was longer than the time which had elapsed since the appearance of the last ice sheet. From this it may be inferred that it is quite possible, at least, that another advance of the great ice sheet may occur.

The Right Thing!

Do you know why we shake hands? In early days man lived alone save for his woman back in the cave. He fought the wild animals alone and dragged home his loot alone. Men warred on one another for the most part. When primitive man was too weary to fight he would drop his club upon meeting another man in his path and hold out his empty hand to show that he was unarmed. And the extended hand warmed into the handtouch, then the handshake.

Today's form says that a person coming into a group does not offer to shake hands. It is up to the members of the group to make him welcome by offering the hand, if they care to.

Couldn't Read It

An African houseboy, having saved a little money, visited an optician. He tried on pair after pair of glasses, but each time stated that he could not read the test letters. At last, in despair, the optician asked him if he'd ever been taught to read.

"No, boss," was the reply. "I have never had the money till now to buy glasses to read."

And it took the optician quite a little while to convince him that glasses alone would not have the desired effect.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Mexican Churches Crowded Sunday

For Final Services Until Government Decree is Lifted—Endless Line of Pilgrims Visit Basilica of Guadeluge.

Mexico City, July 26.—Religious fervor runs high here today, following a Sunday devoted by faithful Catholics to prayer and devotions for the success of the Catholic Church in its contest with the Mexican Government over the government decree for the dissolution of religious orders and the prohibition of the teaching of religious doctrines in the schools.

Thousands swarmed the Catholic Churches of Mexico yesterday for final services, the Vatican having ordered all services to be suspended after this week until the government decree is lifted. The churches will remain open for prayer and hundreds today continued to file through the various churches, kneeling for prayers for the revocation of the government decree.

Most dramatic of yesterday's devotions was the endless line of pilgrims to the Basilica of Guadelupe, shrine of the Patron Saint of Mexico.

The dusty road along the five miles from Mexico City to the Basilica of Guadalupe was crowded all day long with rich and poor alike who went to kneel before the shrine of the Virgin of Guadalupe. Peons in their Sunday best jostled with richly-dressed women, who carried flowers and crosses fashioned from evergreen to lay upon the shrine.

Many women of high station garbed themselves in mourning and cast aside their shoes as they made their way over the roads to the shrine.

Within the Basilica the pilgrims knelt before the shrine and offered vows to maintain their faith and their efforts to bring about a revocation of the government decree. The central altar was crowded all day long and many temporary altars were erected, all of them facing the central altar where the bejewelled statue of the virgin looked down over worshippers.

Although Mexico is accustomed to great religious demonstrations, never before has there been seen such an evidence of faith as that of yesterday.

The Pilgrimages are expected to continue throughout the week until July 31, when the government decree becomes effective.

Fuchsia's High Place

The fuchsia is one of the gardener's most valuable plants, not only for the beauty of its flowers and graceful form of the plant but also because it is adaptable to flower beds and borders and grows with such freedom and such little care. As a house plant it is very desirable.

LAMP PAINTS ARMY ON MOUNTAIN FACE

South's Huge Memorial Projected Against Rock.

Electric light was one of the tools by which the sculptor, Gutzon Borglum and his crew of artisans cut the great "nation's memorial" into the face of Stone mountain near Atlanta, Ga., a piece of sculpture now getting its finishing touches. Light drew the heroic picture of Lee and Jackson and Jefferson Davis and the mobilizing men of the South and drew it with vast strokes so that the workmen, clinging to the immense bare face of the mountain might engrave Borglum's gigantic masterpiece there forever. The sculptor, in an address at the May meeting of the Illuminating Engineering society, New York section, explained how it was done.

When he was called to Atlanta to conceive and execute the huge memorial, he said the committee wanted a bust of Gen. Robert E. Lee, but he showed them that a single bust would be insignificant on such a vast rock surface. Then he sketched the design which is now nearing completion—an inspiring picture of an assembling warlike host rallying to the call of the old South. But the memorial was so large—figures measure 160 feet from riders' hats to horses' hoofs, and the whole picture contains 1,100 objects covering an area a thousand feet long—that it was impossible to outline it in proper perspective working at close range against the sheer face of the smooth rock.

The principle of the old-fashioned "magic lantern" was employed. A large glass slide was made bearing the artist's drawing of the memorial. It was placed in front of a powerful electric lamp at a distance of 800 feet from the mountain and the whole design thus projected by a tilting camera on the vast rock face into which it was to be graven. Every night the picture was thus flooded upon the rock in exactly the proportions of the final work. Painters suspended in "boo'ns' chairs" drew in the outlines so that each following day stone cutters could turn the painting into stone forms. This procedure was continued until the whole memorial was laid out in detail. Then the projections were discontinued and construction went ahead. The light of the electric lamps had done their work.

Those Pesky Deer

Power companies everywhere have their troubles with animals. Occasional stories are told of owls or squirrels "shorting" parallel high-tension wires, but only lately has the deer become a factor in the power business. Mountain hydro-electric companies with wide ditches carrying water sometimes 20 miles through wild country to a power plant are so troubled by deer slipping into the concrete-lined canals that they have begun building bridges of sod-covered tree trunks to span these water routes at points where old deer trails cross. Ladders are built up the sides of the ditches to enable unfortunate animals to climb out of the water. Fences never keep deer away from the canals. In some cases the same animals repeatedly are pulled out of the water.

Rats Worry Submarine Crew

Men aboard one of the largest of the United States submarines, schooled to battle dreadnaughts, found that they had a defiant and dangerous enemy close at hand when they returned from a South American cruise. The foes were huge, long-tailed rats. They proved too clever for traps and, multiplying in large numbers threatened to take possession of storerooms and other parts of the craft. Poison was out of the question because the animals would have secreted themselves in remote corners of the craft to die. Clubbing parties were finally organized. Members of the crew made daily sallies against the rodents, but at last reports had not entirely conquered them.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Historic Brandywine

The action on the Brandywine, famous battle of the American Revolution, was fought on the banks of Brandywine creek, Pennsylvania, on September 11, 1777, between 13,000 Americans under General Washington and 18,000 British under Lord Howe. The Americans were defeated with a loss of about 1,300 men, the British losing about 600. General Lafayette was wounded in this battle. As a result of their victory the British occupied Philadelphia on September 26. Washington attempted to dislodge the British, and attacked Germantown; he was, however, forced to retreat, and retired to winter quarters at Valley Forge, 20 miles northwest of Philadelphia.

Looking Ahead

Capt. Rene Fonck, the French airman, said in an interview in New York:

"The airplane makes wonderful progress. When I was a boy a scientist examined a Morse piano one morning in a despised way. Of course the piano wasn't much—a queer, clumsy contrivance of wood and piano wire.

"'What's the use,' sneered the scientist, 'of these ridiculous power-driven box kites, anyhow?'

"Louis Morse laughed.

"'What's the use,' said he, 'of a new-born baby?'"

Running and Backtrack

It has been estimated that if the energy which a person puts into a Charleston dance were employed in some gainful occupation, the compensation would suffice to support an average family on luxuries and extras for from three to four days.

Tornado's Odd Action Revives Indian Legend

Indian superstitions, many of which have gone with the red man, often reappear and their return sometimes is strangely linked with scientific phenomena.

Centuries ago when tornadoes swept through the forests and erased Indian villages a belief grew up among the Indians that certain areas were protected from the dread destroyer.

Indians held to a belief that tornadoes were powerless against territories immediately surrounding the junction of rivers; that the river gods protected these spots.

The legend was revived among old settlers in the vicinity of Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1920 when a tornado swept through Allen county, destroying two small towns and doing millions of dollars' worth of damage. Thirteen persons were killed by the twister and thirty-four injured. The revival of the legend came when the tornado, sweeping on a straight line toward Fort Wayne, suddenly lifted, passing over the city, only to drop to earth again fifteen miles away to destroy a village. Fort Wayne stands at the junction of the St. Joseph's and St. Mary's river, which together flow into the Maumee.

Patrick McDonough, government meteorologist at Fort Wayne, said that any influence that rivers would have upon a tornado would be atmospheric, and discounted the Indian legend that rivers ward off heavy winds.

"There are tornadoes in the spring and early summer every year," he said, "and Indiana has had several which took many lives and razed much property. In every tornado there is a freak or series of freaks. As a matter of fact, the tornado itself is a freak, of which we know little If there is anything to the legend it is due to atmospheric conditions existing in those localities which the storm missed."

But the old-timers who saw the black funnel bearing down on Fort Wayne, saw it lift and sweep over the city, to dive earthward beyond the city, still believe in the Indian legend.

His Uncertainty

"As I was driving along towards town yesterday," in the crossroads store related Lem Dumm of Slippery Slap. "I heared a hooraw at the Toad Rock school house. I took a look and couldn't detect a thing amiss, and then, just as I was about to drive on, I seed the young lady schoolma'am come crawling out from under the building through a hole in the foundation that didn't look nigh big enough for her; or, anyhow, although I had never laid eyes on her before, I 'lowed it was the school ma'am."

"What was her object, do you reckon, in crawling out from under the school house?" asked the proprietor of the emporium.

"I hain't the least idy in the world. Didn't you hear me say that I just 'lowed it was the school ma'am?" —Kansas City Star.

Autos Help Feed Sparrows

Throughout the inland empire, according to W. J. White, salesman for a Portland, (Ore.) paper house, the sparrows apparently have learned a new source of subsistence, content large in the insurance of automobile radiators.

"I have been observing the birds for several trips," said Mr. White. "At Walla Walla, where I usually spend several days, bringing my car in a private garage, I found a flock of sparrows waiting for me to open the door each morning. They proceeded at once to feast on the bugs. I noticed that the sparrows were thick at points along the street where automobiles were parked. The arrival of a new car was always greeted by a rush of feathered chatterers."

Knell's Great Discovery

The first physician to discover that tuberculosis diseases were caused by the existence of bacilli was Dr. Robert Koch, a German physician and bacteriologist. In 1890 he startled the world by announcing that he had found a remedy for the "white plague," but it was found that his "lymph" in its effect on the human body was worse than the disease.

Straight Lines Broken by Plaits Near Bottom

Straight lines broken by plaits near the bottom of the dress are the outstanding features of this attractive sport dress of cream-colored satin.

Every Type of Frock or Wrap Is in Good Taste

A summary of styles proves that almost every type of frock and wrap may be worn in good taste this season. Certain styles stand out above all others by their general popularity but one sees everything worn from loose Mandarin coats to form-fitting coats and from bead-shaped hats to huge mushroom shapes.

In all wraps, lines about the hem are slender as there is no idea of hemflares on wraps this season. Dresses, on the other hand, are distinctly flared or they have plaits across the front in most cases. The perfectly straight-lined frock is seldom seen either in dresses of street or sports type.

The afternoon dress often takes on the lines of the jumper sports dress with its slender bodice, low-placed waistline and front-plaited skirt. Low waistlines seem to be here to stay. Most women find them youthful and becoming and since women have ceased wearing tight fitting corsets waists and abdomens have increased in size so that the frock with the normal waistline gives one a plump appearance. All effort to bring back curves has been futile as far as Americans are concerned. The Parisians have been striving to bring about a revival of the fitted frock with little avail.

As to materials, stripes, batik print effects, modernistic designs and medium-sized printed designs in every conceivable material are fashionable this year. Plain colors are used mostly for evening or sports wear when they are used at all. For all occasions we find color blended in costumes, frocks, and suits. In summarizing the season's styles sleeves are long, collars are small, waistlines are long, skirts are short, hats are small, shoes are light-colored, costume colors are pastel and hosiery is parchment or light gray in shade.

Flowered Raincoats Are Favorites This Season

Ordinarily raincoats have no glamor for us. This season, however, raincoats are so gorgeously colored that everyone hopes to possess one. There are rubberized silks with flowered prints, plaids, marbled designs with suteed finish and plain colored coats which weigh but ten ounces.

There are cape-coats as well as the familiar straight-lined rubberized models. Often the cape is removable. Beautiful rose, raspberry and green shades are made with lighter tone on the inner side so that they may be reversed. Rubberized print is sponsored for beach wear. Oiled silks painted in batik designs and lined in rayon or left unlined are exquisite for resorts. Flowered crotonnes with solid color on the reverse side are lovely since they may be worn for city as well as country.

Matching hats of rubber accompany many models. One may also buy the rubber hat separately. And smart, indeed, are the pastel colored hats of oilcloth made in mannish style.

Tailor-Mades Popular With Women of Paris

Tailor-mades are becoming more popular in Paris at present. The models are diverse—there are long ones where the jacket ends with the skirt hem, three-quarter jackets, but especially short ones with the jacket just reaching the hips.

Satin tailor-mades and those of fancy woolens are not edged in, but models made of cloth or velvet are braided with narrow braid.

The smoking jacket, popularly known as the tuxedo suit, is made only of plain fabrics which are mostly dark, except for evening wear, when it is made of lame with a very flashy plaited shirt.

Nelson, pastor of the church, officiated. After the ceremony the guests returned to the bride's home where a bountiful wedding supper was served. There were guests present from New York, Haines Falls and Providence. The newly married couple were the recipients of many and beautiful gifts and also substantial checks. After an extended trip to New York and other points of interest they will reside at 167 Abeel street, where a newly furnished home awaits them.

Mrs. Jennie M. Webb, 69 years old, wife of Charles E. John P. Dorsey, a well-known barber for many years in this city, died of heart failure early this morning at the Benedictine Hospital, where he was taken on Sunday morning. He had been employed by Antonio Balestieri at 40 North Front street and on Thursday last was taken ill, went to his home at 44 Green street, but his condition becoming serious he was taken to the Benedictine Hospital. Mr. Dorsey had many friends, being an expert tonsorial artist. Besides his wife, Elizabeth, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs Mary Dorsey Short and Margaret C. Dorsey.

The funeral of John J Hammond, who died in New York city on Saturday, will be held from his late home, 108 East 138th street, New York, Tuesday morning and from the Church of Our Lady of Refuge where a Mass of requiem will be celebrated for the repose of his soul. Interment in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery, this city, upon the arrival of the 2 15 West Shore train. When the body of Mr Hammond was discovered by the police on Saturday bruises on his face and contusions on his scalp raised suspicion that he had been attacked and robbed This was dropped when it was found that he had money in his pockets. An autopsy later revealed that Hammond had suffered from cirrhosis of the liver, which had caused his death, it was believed. The physicians found that the injuries to his head had probably resulted from a sudden fall or when he fainted on the steps.

The funeral of William M. Davis, Jr., was held from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Davis, No. 27 Johnston avenue, on Saturday afternoon at five o'clock and was largely attended by his many friends, for "Billy" Davis was a lad who made friends among people older than himself as well as among his schoolmates and among people in all walks of life, and his cheery, happy disposition made him especially a favorite with the people of his own immediate neighborhood. A Kingston High School student, he attended the Citizens' Training Camp at Plattsburg last summer and this year was a graduate of the Irving School at Tarrytown where he was preparing for a special college course. In order to cover this two years' course of preparatory work in one year, young Davis—he was only 19 years old—was taking some special studies at the Duncan Summer School at Patchogue at the time he met his tragic death. The funeral services on Saturday afternoon were conducted by the Rev Dr. Lucas Boeve, pastor of the First Reformed Church, assisted by Dr. J. M Furman, head master of the Irving School at Tarrytown. Dr. Boeve paid a fine tribute to the conscientious, friendly, Christian boy, upon whose church attendance and general manliness he could always rely. Dr. Furman's only part in the service was the reading of the Scriptures, for so close had the tragedy of William Davis's death come to him that he could not trust himself to otherwise participate in the service. It was a beautiful thought, that placed the marvelously life-like photographs of the lad near to the casket, completely surrounded by pink roses, which were his favorite flower. Among those attending the funeral were W. C. Dunrah, head master of the Summer School at Patchogue, and the school boys of

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 26, 1926

In nearly every state, in the course of a year, there are created commissions or experts appointed to investigate existing systems of taxation, and make reports These "investigations" usually result in inventing or imposing new forms of taxation, rather than in abolishing or reducing existing burdens The usual "investigation" of taxes, is by beneficiaries who can see the need of more revenues and little need of retrenchment

Concerted efforts of state, federal and private agencies to plan and to secure the general application of practical methods of forest taxation which will effectively promote timber conservation and reforestation through private enterprise, are absolutely necessary The Natural Resources Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce recommends that taxes should not be imposed upon the growing trees, but upon the harvest or yield of forest lands

The people are demanding better practical result for the money invested in higher education, or a smaller investment The broad charge is made in a Middle West state, that the state university is not enabling men to get a practical equipment on which to earn a living, in short that there is too much theory Too many young men with four years' college training, find they have taken a blind jump and landed on their faces There is little doubt, about the greater need of a curriculum better suited to enable students to face the after-college period of their lives

THOUGHTS ON BUSSES.

An interesting editorial in the New York Times shows that in 1925 the trolley lines of greater New York carried more than a billion passengers, or almost 40 per cent of the entire traffic within the city, including subways, elevateds and bus lines

There has been agitation to substitute motor busses for the surface lines. The Times points out that as feeders to subways or street cars, the bus has its place, but as a substitute for surface cars in handling mass traffic, it still has to justify itself.

It only hauls about one-half as many people as an electric car and there is every reason to believe that if a sufficient number of busses were put on the streets, to handle the people now carried in the electrics, congestion would be increased rather than decreased. Evidence from other cities and other countries does not indicate that the bus will supersede electric or steam transportation. Rather it will be used in conjunction with these other methods.

POLITICAL HYSTERIA.

In the good old days when votes were secured largely by attacking corporations, the people of Oregon were incited against the Southern Pacific, on the charge that it had failed to administer its land grants in accordance with the terms of the grant. Demand was made that the land on which it had paid taxes for nearly half a century be forfeited to the government. Political pressure was so strong, that the land was taken back by the government. This was done with full knowledge that when the land reverted to the government, the taxes paid by the railroad company would be lost. The theory was, that if the government owned the land, there would be a rush of settlers to buy the rocky hillsides and river canyons.

The beautiful picture painted by the politicians did not materialize. There has been less land settlement than ever before, and on top of it all, sparsely settled counties in Southern Oregon have been losing about $600,000 a year in taxes, which has almost been a deathblow to some of them.

And now what happens? Oregon's representatives in Congress have been successful in passing a bill in the House and the Senate, which provides that the Federal Government reimburse Oregon for 10 years' lost taxes, which aggregate some $4,907,000. How this can be done logically is hard to understand. Public property is tax-free. If the Federal Government pays a few counties $4,907,000 taxes on government land in those counties, why can it not be forced to pay taxes on all Federal lands in other states? In Arizona, for instance, some 60 per cent of land belongs to the Government, and the state is hard pressed to collect its necessary tax revenue from the 40 per cent of privately owned lands within its boundaries.

No better illustration could be given, of the blighting effect of unnecessary public ownership of property, which is thereby removed from taxation and the tax load shifted to the shoulders of remaining private property.

CHANGING THE DISPOSITION.

We are frequently talking about the infections caused by bad teeth and tonsils, and occasionally about the infections from the sinuses or little caverns adjoining and connected with the nose

And yet a British specialist tells us that the time and money lost due to illness following these nasal sinus infections is "immensely greater than that from tuberculosis"

When we remember how prevalent tuberculosis is in this country, and the tremendous loss entailed thereby it is hard to credit the above statement

However, he is able to show that these nasal infections can actually alter the character the disposition, and the power of concentration in the individual so that a Dr Jekyll might become a Mr Hyde He attributes much unhappiness in the home, broken hearts, business losses, and the loss of time and energy to the working man, to these nasal infections

He goes further and tells us that the more serious cases go on to insanity to prison, or even to suicide

Now what about this?

It is only during the past three or four years that any real attention was given infection in the sinuses

Almost every case of heart and joint ailment was thought to be due to infection from the teeth and tonsils As a matter of fact teeth and tonsils are still considered the most frequent cause of these conditions However some of our leading heart specialists and orthopedic surgeons now believe that a great many cases are due to infections from the sinuses

While the sinus in the cheek bone just below the eye can usually be drained readily, the sinuses in the bones surrounding the eyes, present more difficulty and are not as readily recognized.

The result is that these infections go gradually along, growing progressively worse, until the patient is in constant pain This constant pain differentiates it from the severe facial neuralgia

This specialist makes this closing remark "The pity of this sinus infection is that proper persistent treatment will clear up the condition and prevent the terrible events mentioned above."

The point then is not to neglect any form of constant daily headache but to try to have the cause located

New York Convention Ratifies Federal Constitution, After Long Session on July 26, 1788.

The convention that framed the National Constitution was divided by many conflicting opinions. So with the people, after it was adopted by the convention on September 17, 1787, and presented to them for consideration.

It was violently opposed by extreme "State-supremacy men", of whom Governor George Clinton, of New York, was the most representative Of those who signed the document in convention probably not one approved every part Hamilton, who was one of the most earnest advocates of the Constitution, when urging all to sign it, said "No man's ideas are more remote from the plan than my own, but is it possible to deliberate between anarchy and confusion on the one hand and the chances of good on the other?"

When it was submitted to the people, Hamilton, Madison and Jay wrote a series of powerful papers in favor of the Constitution, and its friends now came to be called "Federalists".

The Legislature of New York met at Poughkeepsie on January 9, 1788, and two days later Governor Clinton submitted to it the recommendation of Congress On the 31st the Assembly resolved that the report of the Federal Convention be submitted to delegates, to be chosen by the people An election was held on April 29

The New York Convention met at Poughkeepsie on June 17 This place had been the seat of government since the burning of Kingston by the British, October 7 1777 The sessions were held in the old stone court house, erected in 1702 by Mandert Van Kleek

Fourteen counties were represented by sixty-five delegates. Governor Clinton was unanimously elected president The delegation from New York city included Alexander Hamilton, John Jay, Richard Lewis and Gouverneur Morris, John Sloss Hobart, Chancellor Robert R Livingston, James Duane, Isaac Roosevelt, Richard Harrison and Nicholas Low, while Philip and Gilbert Livingston, Governor George ad General James Clinton, Samuel Jones, Philip Van Cortlandt, Henry Wisner, John Haring Robert Yates, John Lansing, Jr, and Melancthon Smith were the most representative delegates from the other counties

On June 19 the Convention organized and called Mr Oothoudt, of Albany, to the chair The Constitution was read for the second time, and the debate opened by Chancellor Livingston Mr. Lansing replied next day, the preliminary skirmish closed and the reading of the sections began.

The debate was led by Hamilton in favor and Smith in opposition to the Constitution. The first clash was over the representation in Congress, and so warm was this debate that it was not concluded when the news reached Poughkeepsie that New Hampshire had adopted the Constitution. As this was the ninth state, the new Government was now formed and the Confederation dissolved.

The ratification by New York had now become not only necessary, but morally certain. The gratification of the people at the news of New Hampshire's action was swelling into a general burst of joy

The Anti-Federalists attempted to secure the passage of such amendments as would, if accepted, greatly diminish the power of the central government, and the debate continued On July 2 it became known that Virginia had ratified the constitution, still the Anti-Federalists stood firm. It was not until July 11 that Mr. Jay moved the ratification of the constitution, and that such amendments as should be deemed useful or expedient should be recommended.

The debate lasted until July 23, when a test vote was taken. The opposition were in their death throes, but Mr Lansing moved to adopt a resolution reserving to the people the right to withdraw from the Union after a certain number of years, unless the amendments proposed should be adopted. This was also lost.

The convention then resolved unanimously that a circular letter be laid before the several legislatures of the United States, recommending a general convention. The next day, Saturday, July 26, 1778, the constitution was finally ratified by a vote of 30 to 27, and the convention adjourned. Thus New York became the eleventh pillar in the Federal edifice and is represented in the constellation of "Old Glory" by the eleventh star, or the third in the second row.

To Hamilton, the victor in this long struggle, fell the laurels, and to him was assigned the honor of presenting the ratification to congress.

New York city did not even wait for its own state to ratify, but on July 23 held a grand procession, and in the evening dined and toasted the sentiment that New York would speedily adopt the constitution.

Farm Product Prices Even Lower.

Babson Park, Mass., July 26. (Special)—The Federal Reserve Board says, "Farmers, however, are facing a rather lean year, with crops reported at 8 per cent below the last ten years and prices slowly declining." The tendency of wholesale farm products so far as price is concerned has been to drop off slowly but surely ever since January this year. There were two slight exceptions in that prices for wholesale farm products were slightly above March during April and slightly above April during May. The month of June, however, saw a decided slump again to a price the lowest of any of the past 6 months.

The season is late and there is no assurance of any substantial improvement in growing conditions over the balance of the season. European crops are backward, in fact universal growing conditions and unfavorable weather have belied the entire world. 1926 will not be a bumper year for world crops. Agricultural prices have steadily slumped since the early winter. However, the prospective changes in crop conditions have already curbed the contrary movement, and no serious shake-down is coming.

Confidence in one's physical adviser is desirable, for mental attitude is sometimes a part of a physical ill, but chiropractic gets results in spite of disbelief on the patient's part.

Such a case is that of Mr. Dutherman, who was injured in his right eye, and for six months frantically sought relief from every source—except Chiropractic, in which he had no faith. As a last resort, he gave it a trial.

Perhaps he, like many others, cannot understand how nerves passing through the spinal column could possibly reach the eye, so far above the spine. The answer is that Nature has provided two full sets of nerves, direct and "sympathetic" and the latter are subject to spinal adjustments.

HE LACKED FAITH, BUT GOT RESULTS.

"After taking the first adjustment I said it was a humbug, but I continued. After the fifth day the eye showed a marked improvement and I began to have faith. I have now taken 47 adjustments, the eye is absolutely well, and I am feeling much better in general than I have for the last few years."—D. A. Temper

People who do not control their tempers rarely always say they cannot. Within us are greater forces than we credit, and only the chronic invalid finds his mental capacity insufficient to overcome his physical weaknesses. Temper is a physical weakness, and for your own happiness, as well as for the happiness of others, you must determine to overcome it. If you do not, it will overcome you.—Exchange.

WARNING AGAINST KNIGHTS OF ROAD

Practice of "Picking Up" Strangers Proved by Records to Be Harmful.

With the opening of the pleasant weather the "sons of Ishmael" who have been "holed up" are again afoot on the highways of the nation, according to a motorist who doesn't follow the practice of "picking up" strangers on the road.

These restless souls, made impatient by an enforced sojourn in one place for the months of the rains and cold, are now in a hurry to be "going somewhere else."

Going Anywhere.

They are going north or south and some east or west. Few know whither they are going or how far All that seems to interest them is a change of scenery, a new environment, new faces.

No matter on which highway one travels nowadays there one will see numbers of these "birds of passage" trudging along the road going somewhere, anywhere.

Some of them are honest workers who are seeking new jobs, and lacking the necessary railroad or stage fare, are making the journey on foot But most are merely "tramps" "weary Willies," "bos."

There was a time when these latter "birds of passage" made a practice of giving their "patronage" to the railroads exclusively when they made their "long jumps" They rode the rods or blind baggage and the "side-door pullman" was travel "de luxe" to these gentry.

In recent years they have made a radical change in their methods of travel The increasing number of passenger automobiles and trucks has been making the highways easy for them. Now they travel by auto —when they can.

And that is just the trouble. They do very frequently can and do. Motorists, most of whom are far more kindhearted and generous than they should be for their own good, do not hesitate to stop on signal from these "knights of the road" and carry them as far as they desire to go

Regret Generosity.

There are many instances where autoists have regretted this generosity. It has resulted in their being found on the roadside, sans auto, sans purse and almost sans life itself.

Police annals throughout the nation are full of such cases and yet human nature is such that motorists will keep on doing the same thing time after time, heedless of the warnings contained in newspaper accounts of theft and almost fatal assaults by members of this army of "ride-grafters."

The wise motorist is he who will not give a "lift" to these gentry; who will go on his way unmindful of the stop signal so urgently waved in his path.

Study Oil Viscosity and Torque Needed to Start

Some attention has been given by the bureau of standards, Department of Commerce, to the relation between oil viscosity and the torque required to start an automobile engine in rotation or to bring it up to a given speed. From the results thus far obtained it appears that while the viscosity of the oil does have a pronounced effect upon the power required to crank the engine at speeds of 100 r. p. m. and higher, it does not have any appreciable influence upon the torque required to start the engine rotating.

Keep Glass Clear

Among the new laws affecting motorists in New York state are: The windshield and rear windows must be kept clean from posters. A license plate must be clearly visible on the front of the car. Manufacturers and dealers are required to register the sale of new cars.

Six Ways of Being Good Driver Told by Expert

Seven nationally known traffic and safety experts were asked to state what they believe were the characteristics of a safe and good driver. An analysis of the opinions submitted show that the men all agreed on the following major essentials of good driving:

1. The good driver has a high degree of self-control at all times, this control manifesting itself in various ways.

2. The good driver always maintains his car in such shape that it responds easily and quickly, thus assuring control of the car as far as the purely mechanical equation is concerned.

3. The good driver regulates his speed in accord with the conditions of the road over which he is traveling and never travels at such a rate that he cannot stop it within the "clear course" ahead.

4 The good driver invariably exercises due regard for the rights of others and always applies the simple axioms of courteous behavior.

5 The good driver accepts the safety of the pedestrians as a primary consideration

6. The good driver keeps his mind on the road ahead, as day-dreaming or chattering at the wheel causes many more accidents than are caused by bee stings.

Mechanism for Headlights

The illustration shows an adjusting mechanism for vehicle headlights, comprising a rod extending transversely across the front of the vehicle, having conical-shaped recesses in its ends, a brace rod arranged parallel with the first rod and having its ends secured to the fenders of the vehicle, brackets supported by the fenders at each end of the first rod, adjustable bolts carried by the brackets, pointed ends on said bolts for engagement in the recesses of said first rod, a foot pedal and adjustable connection between the foot pedal and the first rod for imparting movement thereto.

Always Release Clutch When Rounding Corners

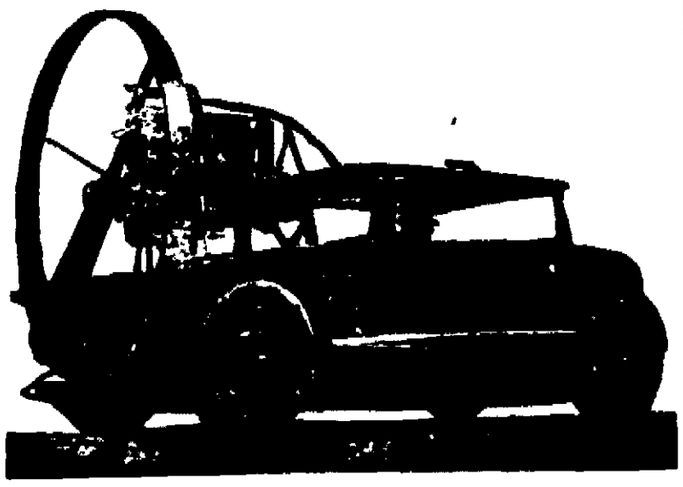
Always throw out the clutch when rounding a sharp corner. It has a beneficial effect upon the tires. Whenever the car tends to skid, due to its deflection from the straight course, a cross strain is brought to bear on the tire treads, which is directly proportional to the weight of the vehicle and the radius of the curve and proportional to the square of its velocity. If the power is applied in rounding a curve, the tendency to rip off the tires is further aggravated by the backward drag due to traction. If the clutch is released, however, the factor is eliminated and the strain is thereby reduced.

Auto Operators Advised to Start on Low Speed

When starting down a very steep grade it is advisable to place the gears in low speed. The rear wheels will then turn the engine, a movement requiring considerable effort. This produces a very good braking effect. A light car on a moderately steep hill will stop, and a heavy car will move slowly, but always under control. This is called "using the engine as a brake."

It should be practiced from time to time, so that the driver may become familiar with the method. If all the other brakes fail, this is the best and only thing to do. Practice the trick frequently, so that it becomes as easy as any other operation, and you will have cause to be thankful if ever the need arises to use it.

TRAVELS ON SNOW, ICE, WATER OR GROUND



George McLaughlin, a Bangor (Maine) garage man, has invented a machine which is capable of traveling on snow and ice, water and ground. It is equipped with a 70-horsepower aeroplane motor and will make 40 miles an hour on the road. It has airtight pontoons on both sides under the running boards, the top is constructed of wood boards in two layers covered, with waterproofed canvas between [illegible] to make it watertight. It is steered by the front wheels on both land and water, having no rudder. It will carry five passengers comfortably and is large and roomy; in looks, finish and equipment it equals the best limousines. Photograph shows a side view of the novel machine.

70th BIRTHDAY OF GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

London, July 26.—George Bernard Shaw spent his seventieth birthday today knee deep in letters and telegrams of congratulation

The messages hailing his successful passing of the proverbial three score and ten came from the four corners of the world It is likely that no monarch, however beloved, ever received a greater number of congratulatory letters than awaited Shaw at Adelphi when he returned to London this morning from a week end in the country.

Writers in newspapers and magazines joined the chorus of praise, all stressing the eminent place in British letters held by Shaw. Some asserted he has become the most famous man in the world Socialist writers and publicists lauded his political views, and dramatic critics paid high tribute to his plays. All professed not to believe Shaw is seventy, since he maintains the vigor and physical appearance of thirty, although his once red beard has now turned to white

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By PERCY GRAHAM BONNER

EAGLES OF FREEDOM

"I wish I could learn the next new, Mother Eagle," said Eddy Eagle.

Very Superior.

"Yes, and me, too," said Eddy's sister, Edith.

"In just a little while," said Mother Eagle. "Remember, young eaglet, that you only came into this world a short time ago. Remember that when you were hatched, four weeks after I had laid the dull white eggs, you were nothing but little creatures, who couldn't fly at all.

"But as I laid my two fine eggs in February and did not wait until the early part of March, as some mother eagles do, you will be allowed to leave the nest early in July."

"Oh, Mother Eagle," said Eddy, "I wish I were a full grown eagle. I do, indeed."

"And I wish so, too," said Edith Eagle.

"How long will it be, mother," continued Eddy, "before I have a white head and neck and tail? I am such a dull, brownish color."

"Patience, Eddy, patience," said Mother Eagle. "Toward the end of the second year you will show signs of the white appearing under your tail. But you must reach your third birthday to be a full grown Bald Eagle with the white head."

"It takes a long time to do things," Eddy said to himself. And as his mother laughed, a great, noisy, harsh and broken laugh. "He thinks he has discovered something new," she said to herself.

"As it will take years for us to be grown up and as we are still only your little eagles, will you tell us a story, Mother Eagle?" urged Eddy.

"Yes, I will tell you a story," said Mother Eagle, "and gladly, for it is a story I am very proud of telling which I am about to tell you now.

"It's a story no other bird, nor any animal, nor any fish can tell.

"Only a Bald Eagle can tell this story."

The two eagles sat by their mother in the nest high, high up in a great pine tree.

Their mother and father had had the same nest for a number of years.

"Our cousins the Golden Eagles," commenced Mother Eagle, "are larger than we are. They are very superior and fine in every way, but I am not surprised they weren't given this honor.

"They aren't as sociable as we are. They don't go to so many places as we do—lakes and ponds and rivers and seaside places. They don't fly over so many people, but keep to the mountains, as a rule.

"Now we are the birds chosen by the United States to be the national emblem of the country. Yes, over these rivers and ponds and streams and lakes, over the land and the trees and the people, we will fly and know that we are the birds of this country.

"It isn't that we are so wonderful or so unusual. No, the Golden Eagles are larger and more beautiful, but that isn't what the country wants. They want to have as an emblem a bird who flies far, but who doesn't just live in one little part of the land.

"But, little eagles, here is another great secret. We are famous for our wonderful eyesight. And so this country, which always looks for the light and the truth and the right, has chosen us, too, because we are birds with clear, strong, true eyesight.

A Full Grown Bald Eagle.

"And we're birds of the air. We're great, free eagles, and as we perch in our high trees or as we fly over the water or the hills, we are as gloriously, wonderfully free as any creatures under the sun.

"These people are free! So they have chosen us mostly for that great reason—that we are as they are and always will be—free!"

Then the little eagles, calling in high voices of their pride and joy, flew off from the nest for the first time on what was really the Fourth of July!

The St. Lawrence 'Quake Studied

Government Geologist Makes Scientific Study of Causes and Extent of Big Quakes of February, 1925.

The causes and effects of the earthquake that so greatly disturbed New Englanders on February 18, 1925, have been made the subject of a scientific investigation by the Department of the Interior. This investigation, carried on by Arthur Keith, a geologist of the Geological Survey, discloses a number of interesting and perhaps not generally known facts.

The earthquake, usually referred to as the St. Lawrence earthquake, was but one, though the most severe, of a group or series of earthquakes that disturbed an enormous area in the northeastern United States and Canada between July, 1924, and March, 1926. Aside from the testimony of the sensitive seismograph, the St. Lawrence quake was noted by the human senses in an area of about a million square miles, extending from the northeastern tip of the Province of Quebec west to Chicago, a distance of 1,500 miles, and from Sudbury, Ontario, to South Carolina, a distance of 1,200 miles. As the northern border of this region is the tract along the St. Lawrence that was most violently shaken it can be assumed that a similarly large uninhabitated area to the north was affected, and as the Boston region at the seashore was rocked almost as severely as any other part of New England probably a great area beneath the Atlantic ocean was shaken also—in other words, the shocks extended over an area of some 2,000,000 square miles.

The cause of the earthquake is put down by the Geological Survey as related to the tilting of the rock beds of the affected area following the glacial period. The theory is under the weight of the great ice sheet which lay upon the country thousands of feet thick, the northeastern states were depressed or tilted toward the north, and that since the retreat of the ice they have nearly recovered their former attitude. The recovery is not yet complete, however, for the tilting has continued within historic times. This postglacial tilting, it is stated, is clearly of the order of magnitude to be associated with the production of earthquakes.

'Quake Was Complex Movement.

The investigation by the Geological Survey was based largely upon reports of individual witnesses throughout the area. Seismograph records were also studied, but the scarcity of seismograph stations in the United States makes such evidence of only secondary value. There was great variation in the intensity of the quake, and apparently there were a number of centers of greatest intensity, widely removed from one another. The shaking was most severe along the St. Lawrence River, especially at two centers, or foci—one near Murray Bay and the other near Three Rivers, fully 150 miles apart. There chimneys were thrown down and buildings seriously damaged. Five foci of high intensity in disturbance were found throughout New England, from northern Maine to central Connecticut, indicating that the earthquake was not a simple but rather a complex movement of the earth. In these areas many chimneys were thrown down, and no other material damage was done. It is of interest that some of these areas of high intensity were immediately adjoined by tracts of much lower intensity.

One belt of maximum disturbance enters extreme northern Maine along the St. Johns river and forms part of the belt that crosses the St. Lawrence near Murray Bay. A second belt appears in central Maine, extending northwestward from a point near the Atlantic Ocean, but its inland part is not known, as the country there is not settled. A third belt extends from northwestern Vermont across New Hampshire and eastern Massachusetts into Cape Cod. This is the chief belt of high intensity in New England. A fourth belt reaches from Long Island Sound up the line of the Connecticut River almost to Canada. Where the third and fourth belts cross each other there was an unusual massing of high intensities and also of after shocks. A fifth and shorter belt of high intensity lies parallel to the fourth, along the western boundaries of Connecticut and Massachusetts.

In studying the phenomena of these quakes, the Geological Survey finds no apparent connection between the severity of shock and the structure of the rock beds but a plain correspondence between lithology and severity—that is, the areas of the most intense quaking are, in broad terms, those of the weaker rocks, such as the shales and sandstones of the lower Connecticut valley, the slates of the upper valley, the slates and sandstones of the Boston and Narragansett basins, and the slates of south-central and northeastern Maine, western Massachusetts, and northwestern Vermont.

Effect on Man's Minds.

An interesting phase of the investigation was the effort to ascertain the effect of the earthquake upon the activities and minds of the citizens of the affected areas. The physical damage caused was readily discovered and was comparatively unimportant. Then mental effects were pronounced, however, and might easily have led to disastrous results if the quakes had been only a little more severe. This part of the inquiry brought out some interesting social traits, as well as the finest insight.

The descendants of the old New England stock regard moderation and absolute truth as objects of respect, and to them the giving of help to a public inquiry was an inherited duty. They could be relied upon to give cool, impartial statements because they had preserving their calm even though startled by their first great earthquake.

In strong contrast were the French Canadians, of rather recent immigration, with whom reference is but a leading characteristic and whose desire to tell a good story and give the hearer his money's worth seemed to lead some of them rather far afield.

The Italian fruit dealers

The Italian Fruit Dealers.

The Italian fruit dealers who flourish in all the good-sized towns were excellent sources of evidence. Earthquakes meant little to these people, for they were old stories to them in Italy. They gave ready and matter-of-fact accounts, provided the inquirer could convince them that what they said in such a Government investigation would not be used against them.

The Greeks were the most investigative, and the cold shoulders that they turned upon the Federal scientist spoke volumes as to their views on governmental inquiry.

New England is in general thickly populated, and the region has therefore yielded a larger result in observational data than almost any other that could be selected in America. The time when the big quake occurred was especially favorable to its general observation. People at 9:30 p. m. on Saturday were awake as a rule but not specially occupied and the country stores were open and well filled with articles to regale both sound and motion. The telephone service, however, broke down in the towns with the sudden load of thousands of calls, adding to the general fear. A large factor in allaying this fear was the radio, for within a few minutes the news flashed through the air that an earthquake had passed, and this relieved thousands of anxious minds. The quake furnished a striking commentary on the speed of our modern civilization. The telegraph, the swiftest messenger of the last generation was nearly forgotten at all but the telephone, our indispensable servant ten years ago, was almost a failure in the emergency, but the radio, the plaything of yesterday, arose and met the demand and spread the news to all who had the means of receiving it.

Extreme Heard Rocking Sound.

A noticeable effect of the earthquake was the loud sound or roar that preceded the shock which was generally noted in northern New England and New York. The sound was likened variously to that of distant thunder, of a plane or rumbling motor truck, or running water. This roar was heard well enough to be all manner of people.

The [illegible] earthquake [illegible] affected was horizontal or sideways. Countless loose articles rocked back and forth, as did houses, tall buildings, and church spires. Clocks stopped, pictures and chandeliers swung like pendulums on the walls and chairs and beds were rocked like cradles. Floors seemed to move in waves, and people felt as if riding in small boats in a rough sea.

In this respect the St. Lawrence earthquake differed greatly from the smaller ones of the zone in which the vertical motion was plain and the lateral was lacking. This swaying, sideways motion was observed over the whole territory of the St. Lawrence quake. Millions of cubic miles of rock and earth being thus moved—a fact that [illegible] Men of the corps of engineers in the disturbance. Furthermore, the comparative uniformity of the phenomena over the great area points to a force that was not only great and widespread but also deep-seated, and this in turn indicates that a still greater mass was set in motion. Viewed thus the St. Lawrence earthquake ranks as one of the great shocks that have affected North America.

THE ELVES' PARTY

"COME to the ball," said Effie Elf. "We are giving a ball, we want every one to come."

And she went around asking all the friends of the Elves, and the friends of the Elves are many.

"You'll be sure to come, won't you, Fairy Princess Twilight-Bell?" she asked. And Fairy Princess Twilight-Bell accepted with much joy.

"You'll be sure to come, won't you, Fairy Princess Joy?" she asked. And Effie Elf Invited Old Mr. Giant and Many Others.

Fairy Princess Joy said she wouldn't miss it for anything.

"You'll be sure to come, won't you, Fairy Ybab?" she asked. And Fairy Ybab said she would come and that the Fairies' orchestra would come, too.

"Then," said Fairy Ybab, "when the members of the Elves' orchestra want to dance we will play for them!"

And then Effie Elf asked the rest of the Fairies, and all of the Brownies, and Billie Brownie and his brother, Bennie, accepted for the whole family!

Effie Elf invited old Mr. Giant and Witty Witch and she invited Mr. Sun and Mr. Moon.

She invited the King of the Clouds and the Army of Raindrops and the Mist grandchildren and the Rainbow Brothers. She invited the Gnomes and Peter accepted for all of his family. She invited the Bogey family and the Oaf family and she invited the Cloud Fairies.

Some one asked her how she expected to have all of the guests come. It would not be possible to have the King of the Clouds and the Army of Raindrops and the Mist grandchildren and the Rainbow Brothers and the others all at the same time.

Effie Elf invited her guests to come in the afternoon and to remain until night. Some of the guests had other engagements and told her they could not stay all those hours, but they could stay for a while and that pleased Effie Elf.

Well, the party began. And all the guests came. The Fairies and the Brownies, the Gnomes and the members of the Bogey and Oaf families, Witty Witch and old Mr. Giant—every one of them appeared.

And then, all of a sudden it began to rain and then every one remembered that it had been said that the King of the Clouds and the Army of Raindrops and the Mist grandchildren had all been invited.

And how dark they made it and how they did pour down and what a spattering and a splashing they made. But Effie Elf had called her guests to come within the great Elfland tent so they could look out from every side without getting wet.

Before long Mr. Sun appeared right while the King of the Clouds was coming down, and he called out:

"Hello, King, how are you?" It shows what a high-up creature Mr. Sun is that he feels entitled to speak to a king in such a fashion. And the King of the Clouds liked to be greeted in that way by so noble and high a creature as Mr. Sun.

And then appeared the Rainbow Brothers and Mother Rainbow looked over them. All the Rainbow children came, too, for Mother Rainbow always brings her children with her. They wore orange and green and pink and lavender.

Oh, then came the Cloud Fairies in fluffy white silvery costumes, and some wore sashes of yellow golden cloud silk which were very gorgeous.

Later Mr. Moon came peeping over a hill and Mr. Sun excused himself politely after a bit. But oh, such a gorgeous ball it was, and every guest came to it!

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

MAGIC OF RAW SKINS

SIR WALTER SCOTT said that one of his earliest recollections was of lying on the floor of the grandfather's house wrapped in a bloody skin just stripped from a slaughtered sheep to cure his lameness. Sir Walter's people were of the border gentry related to the high Scottish nobility, educated and enlightened for their time, yet they apparently had full faith in this ancient piece of folk-medicine and looked for better results from its magic than from the learning of the medical faculty of Edinburgh who had been consulted concerning young Scott's affliction. And Edinburgh was then the very headquarters of medical knowledge.

It was about the time of the battle of Bunker Hill that Sir Walter lay wrapped in the freshly stripped sheepskin, but in some respects times have not altered so very much since that date. The warm and bloody sheepskin newly stripped is still considered in many parts both of this country and Europe as a sovereign cure for certain diseases. In different parts of the country different diseases are specified as the ones for which the fresh skin is to be applied. In one section they generally recommend it for inflammation of the bowels. There are kindred superstitions throughout the country with regard to fresh skins of other animals. In another section they cure chilblains by wrapping the foot in a "warm, bloody rabbit skin." This is nothing more or less than a survival of the primitive idea of disease transference. Modern science ascribes the transmission of disease to microbes; primitive man ascribed it to magic. Modern science conceives a transmission; Mr. Caveman went further and conceived a transference. Then since transference was possible why not transfer the disease to an animal or to the skin of an animal so newly stripped that it still retained the receptive qualities of the animal; in fact the magic of association of the animal itself?

And get a little rabbit skin
To wrap the baby up in.

Titles Made Hereditary

The title "markgraf" or "margrave" was at first held only during the life of the incumbent. As these men became more independent and powerful their positions and titles became vested in the same line and they were established as a powerful hereditary order of nobility. This occurred about the Twelfth century. The margraves then acquired the rank of princes of the empire, between counts and dukes.

SIGNS OF DEPARTURE

FOR some reason or other a good many stories of financial disaster have for their heroes or their central characters colored persons. For instance, there is the time-honored yarn of the mulatto cashier who told a black depositor seeking to withdraw his funds "dat de intrust had done et up dat money!" And one likewise recalls the pathetic narrative of the ancient negro who, on being told by the state bank examiner that banks had busted before and that no doubt in the future banks would continue to bust, sorrowfully replied: "Yas, suh, I reckin you's right. But, boss, dis is de fust time I ever had one bust right in my face!"

I think of yet a third: An elderly person of color secured a job as janitor in a national bank. He put his savings on deposit in the institution, but after a few weeks withdrew the sum and transferred it to a rival bank across the street. News of this having reached the president's ears, he sent for the old man.

"Uncle Ike," he said, "of course your money is your own to do with as you please, but don't you think it looks peculiar for you to be working here for us and keeping your money somewhere else? What's the idea, anyhow?"

"Well, Mist' Blanchard," said Uncle Ike, "I's tuck notice dat you wears yore hat all de time you's in yore office. I ain't never seen you widout you had yore hat clamped on yore haid."

"What has my habit of wearing my hat constantly to do with the case?" asked the puzzled president.

"Mist' Blanchard," said Uncle Ike, "I ain't gwine tell you no lie. If you must know de truth, it's done made me uneasy. You looks so much lak a man dat's fixin' to go 'way somewhar's in a hurry!"

Section 1. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That section two of article one of the constitution be amended to read as follows:

§ 2. The trial by jury in all cases in which it has been heretofore used shall remain inviolate forever; but the legislature may provide for the impanelling of additional jurors to attend during the trial to fill any vacancies which from any cause occur on a jury prior to the final submission of the case to the jury; but a jury trial may be waived by the parties in all civil cases in the manner to be prescribed by law.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION OF THE SENATE AND ASSEMBLY PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO SECTION SEVEN OF ARTICLE ONE OF THE CONSTITUTION, IN RELATION TO EXCESS CONDEMNATION BY COUNTIES.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That section seven of article one of the constitution be amended to read as follows:

§ 7. When private property shall be taken for any public use, the compensation to be made therefor, when such compensation is not made by the state, shall be ascertained by a jury, or by the supreme court with or without a jury, but not with a referee, or by not less than three commissioners appointed by a court of record, as shall be prescribed by law. Private roads may be opened in the manner to be prescribed by law; but in every case the necessity of the road and the amount of all damage to be sustained by the opening thereof shall be first determined by a jury of freeholders, and such amount, together with the expenses of the proceedings, shall be paid by the person to be benefited. The use of property for the drainage of swamp or agricultural lands is declared to be a public use and general laws may be passed permitting the owner or occupants of swamp or agricultural lands to construct and maintain for the drainage thereof, necessary drains, ditches and dykes upon the lands of others, under proper restrictions on making just compensation, and such compensation together with the cost of such drainage may be assessed, wholly or partly, against any property benefited thereby; but no special laws shall be enacted for such purposes.

The legislature may authorize cities and counties to take more land and property than is needed for actual construction in the laying out, widening, extending or relocating parks, public places, highways or streets; provided, however, that the additional land and property so authorized to be taken shall be no more than sufficient to form suitable building sites abutting on such park, public place, highway or street. After so much of the land and property has been appropriated for such park, public place, highway or street as is needed therefor, the remainder may be sold or leased.

§ 2. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION OF THE SENATE AND ASSEMBLY PROPOSING AMENDMENTS TO SECTION TWO OF ARTICLE THREE, SECTION ONE OF ARTICLE FOUR AND SECTION ONE OF ARTICLE FOURTEEN OF THE CONSTITUTION, IN RELATION TO THE TERMS OF OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR AND LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR, AFFECTING IN LIKE MANNER THE TERMS OF OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER AND ATTORNEY GENERAL, AND IN RELATION TO THE TERMS OF OFFICE OF SENATORS AND MEMBERS OF ASSEMBLY AND THE METHOD OF AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That section two of article three of the constitution be amended to read as follows:

§ 2. The senate shall consist of fifty members, except as hereinafter provided. The senators elected in the year one thousand [eight] nine hundred and [nineteen] twenty-six shall hold their offices for [three] two years, and their successors shall be chosen for [two] four years. § 3. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That section one of article fourteen of the constitution be amended to read as follows:

§ 1. Any amendment or amendments to this constitution may be proposed in the senate and assembly; and if the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered on their journals, and the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the legislature [to be] whose assembly shall have been chosen at the next general election of [senators] members of assembly, and shall be published for three months previous to the time of making such choice; and if in the legislature whose assembly shall have been so next chosen, as aforesaid such proposed amendment or amendments shall be agreed to by a majority of all the members elected to each house, then it shall be the duty of the legislature to submit such proposed amendment or amendments to the people for approval in such manner and at such times as the legislature shall prescribe; and if the people shall approve and ratify such amendment or amendments by a majority of the electors voting thereon, such amendment or amendments shall become a part of the constitution from and after the first day of January next after such approval.

§ 6. Each member of the legislature shall receive for his services an annual salary of [one] two thousand five hundred dollars. The members of either house shall also receive the sum of one dollar for every ten miles they shall travel in going to and returning from their place of meeting, once in each session on the most usual route. He shall communicate by message to the legislature at every session the condition of the state, and recommend such matters to it as he shall judge expedient. He shall transact all necessary business with the officers of government, civil and military. He shall expedite all such measures as may be resolved upon by the legislature, and shall take care that the laws are faithfully executed. He shall receive for his services an annual salary of [ten] twenty-five thousand dollars, and there shall be provided for his use a suitable and furnished executive residence.

§ 8. The lieutenant-governor shall receive for his services an annual salary of [five] ten thousand dollars, and shall not receive or be entitled to any other compensation, fee or perquisite, for any duty or service he may be required to perform by the constitution or by law.

§ 3. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the foregoing amendments be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of making such choice.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION OF THE SENATE AND ASSEMBLY PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION, IN RELATION TO PROVIDING FOR AN EXECUTIVE BUDGET.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the constitution be amended by adding a new article to follow article four to be article four-a to read as follows:

ARTICLE IV-A

§ 1. On or before the fifteenth day of October in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-eight and in each year thereafter the head of each department of the state government, except the legislature and judiciary, shall submit to the governor itemized estimates of appropriations to meet the financial needs of such department, including a statement in detail of all moneys for which any general or special appropriation is desired at the ensuing session of the legislature, classified according to relative importance and in such form and with such explanation as the governor may require. Copies of such estimates shall be simultaneously furnished to the designated representatives of the appropriate committees of the legislature for their information.

The governor, after hearings thereon, at which he may require the attendance of heads of departments and their subordinates, shall revise such estimates according to his judgment. The representatives aforesaid of the committees of the legislature shall be invited to attend such hearings, and under regulations to be provided by law shall be entitled to make inquiry in respect to the estimates and the revision thereof.

Itemized estimates of the financial needs of the legislature certified by the presiding officer of each house and of the judiciary certified by the comptroller shall be transmitted to the governor on or before said fifteenth day of October for inclusion in the budget without revision but with such recommendation as he may think proper.

§ 2. On or before the fifteenth day of January next succeeding (except in the case of a newly elected governor and then on or before the first day of February) he shall submit to the legislature a budget containing a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues. It shall contain all the estimates so revised or certified and clearly itemized, and shall be accompanied by a bill or bills for all proposed appropriations and reappropriations; it shall show the estimated revenues for the ensuing fiscal year and the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of the current fiscal year—together with the measures of taxation, if any, which the governor may propose for the increase of the revenues. It shall be accompanied by a statement of current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the state; statements of the debts and funds of the state; an estimate of its financial condition as of the beginning and end of the ensuing fiscal year; and a statement of revenues and expenditures for the two fiscal years next preceding said year in form suitable for comparison. The governor may before final action by the legislature thereon, and not more than thirty days after submission thereof, amend or supplement the budget; he may also with the consent of the legislature, submit such amendment or a supplemental bill at any time before the adjournment of the legislature.

A copy of the budget and of any amendments or additions thereto shall be forthwith transmitted by the governor to the comptroller.

§ 3. The governor and the heads of departments shall have the right, and it shall be the duty of the heads of departments when requested by either house of the legislature, to appear and be heard in respect to the budget during the consideration thereof, and to answer inquiries relevant thereto. The procedure for such appearance and inquiries shall be provided by law. The legislature may not alter an appropriation bill submitted by the governor except to strike out or reduce items therein, but it may add thereto items of appropriation provided that such additions are stated separately and distinctly from the original items of the bill and refer each to a single object or purpose. None of the restrictions of this section, however, shall apply to appropriations for the legislature or judiciary. [illegible]

§ 4. Neither house shall consider further appropriations until the appropriation bills proposed by the governor shall have been finally acted on by both houses; [illegible] shall such further appropriations be then made except by separate bills each for a single work or object, which bills shall be subject to the governor's approval as provided in section nine of article four. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the governor from recommending that one or more of his proposed bills be passed in advance of the others to supply the immediate needs of government or to meet an emergency.

§ 2. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

* So in original. [illegible] "Section 1" [illegible]

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION OF THE SENATE AND ASSEMBLY PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO SECTION FOUR OF ARTICLE FIVE OF THE CONSTITUTION, IN RELATION TO THE HEAD OF THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT IN THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), that section four of article five of the constitution be amended to read as follows:

§ 4. The head of the executive department shall be the governor. The head of the department of audit and control shall be the comptroller and of the department of law, the Attorney-general. The head of the department of education shall be the regents of the university of the state of New York, who shall appoint and at pleasure remove a commissioner of education to be the chief administrative officer of the department. The head of the department of agriculture and markets shall be appointed in a manner to be prescribed by law. Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, the heads of all other departments and the members of all boards and commissions mentioned in this article, excepting temporary commissions for special purposes, shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate and may be removed by the governor, in a manner to be prescribed by law.

§ 2. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION OF THE SENATE AND ASSEMBLY PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO SECTION SEVEN OF ARTICLE SEVEN OF THE CONSTITUTION, IN RELATION TO THE FOREST PRESERVE.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That section seven of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows:

§ 7. The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. Nothing contained in this section shall prevent the state from constructing a state highway from Saranac lake in Franklin county to Long lake in Hamilton county and thence to Old Forge in Herkimer county by way of Blue Mountain lake and Raquette lake, and nothing shall prevent the state from constructing a state highway in Essex county from Wilmington to the top of Whiteface mountain.

The legislature may by general laws provide for the use of not exceeding three per centum of such lands for the construction and maintenance of reservoirs for municipal water supply, for the canals of the state and to regulate the flow of streams. Such reservoirs shall be constructed, owned and controlled by the state, but such work shall not be undertaken until after the boundaries and high flow lines thereof shall have been accurately surveyed and fixed, and after public notice, hearing and determination that such lands are required for such public use. The expense of any such improvements shall be apportioned on the public and private property and municipalities benefited to the extent of the benefits received. Any such reservoir shall always be operated by the state and the legislature shall provide for a charge upon the property and municipalities benefited for a reasonable return to the state upon the value of the rights and property of the state used and the services of the state rendered, which shall be fixed for terms of not exceeding ten years and be readjustable at the end of any term. Unsanitary conditions shall not be created or continued by any such public works. A violation of any of the provisions of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or, with the consent of the supreme court in appellate division, on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen.

§ 2. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in uniformity* with section one of article fourteen of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

AMENDMENT NUMBER NINE

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION OF THE SENATE AND ASSEMBLY PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE SEVEN OF THE CONSTITUTION, IN RELATION TO THE CREATION OF A DEBT OR DEBTS OF THE STATE TO PROVIDE MONEYS FOR THE ELIMINATION OF RAILROAD CROSSINGS AT GRADE.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That article seven of the constitution be amended by adding at the end thereof a new section, to be section fourteen, to read as follows:

§ 14. The legislature may authorize by law the creation of a debt or debts of the state, not exceeding in the aggregate three hundred million dollars, to provide moneys for the elimination, under state supervision, of railroad crossings at grade within the state, at the expense of the state and railroad companies, or of the state, railroad companies and one or more municipal corporations. The term "municipal corporations," as used in this section, means counties, cities, towns and villages. Of the expense of a grade crossing elimination to which any of the proceeds of such a debt are applied, twenty-five per centum shall be borne by the state, twenty-five per centum by one or more municipal corporations, and fifty per centum by the railroad company, or companies, except that if a grade crossing elimination be on a state highway, fifty per centum of such expense shall be borne by the state and fifty per centum by the railroad company or companies. The legislature, by law, shall prescribe, or shall provide the manner for determining, whether the twenty-five per centum of expense herein required to be borne by one or more municipal corporations shall be borne wholly by one municipal corporation or apportioned between two or more, and, if so apportioned, the portion to be borne by each. Laws shall be enacted to provide for repayment to the state of moneys advanced in aid of railroad companies and municipal corporations, at such times, in such manner and with interest at such rate, that the state shall be able to pay when due the portion of the state debt equal to the proceeds which shall have been so advanced, and interest thereon. The provisions of this article, not inconsistent with this section, relating to the issuance of bonds for a debt or debts of the state and the maturity and payment thereof, shall apply to a state debt or debts created pursuant to this section, except that the law authorizing the contracting of such debt or debts shall take effect without submission to the people pursuant to section four of this article.

§ 2. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TEN

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION OF THE SENATE AND ASSEMBLY PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO SECTION FOURTEEN OF ARTICLE SEVEN OF THE CONSTITUTION, IN RELATION TO A STATE DEBT OR DEBTS TO PROVIDE MONEYS FOR THE ELIMINATION OF RAILROAD CROSSINGS AT GRADE AND APPORTIONMENT OF EXPENSE THEREOF.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That section fourteen of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows:

§ 14. The legislature may authorize by law the creation of a debt or debts of the state, not exceeding in the aggregate three hundred million dollars, to provide moneys for the elimination, under state supervision, of railroad crossings at grade within the state, at the expense of the state, railroad companies, counties and cities, [towns and villages] as hereinafter provided. Of the expense of a grade crossing elimination to which any of the proceeds of such a debt are applied, [twenty-five] fifty per centum shall be borne by the [state, twenty-five per centum by the city, town or village] and fifty per centum by the railroad company. The remaining fifty per centum shall be borne by the state and the county in which the crossing is located, or by the state and the city in which it is located if the city contains two or more counties; except that if so provided by law, such remaining fifty per centum of the expense of elimination of a grade crossing in any other city shall be borne by the state, the county and such city. The proportions of the expense of a grade crossing elimination to be borne by the state and county, state and city, or state, county and city, under the provisions of this section, shall be determined by or pursuant to law. Laws shall be enacted to provide, so far as practicable, for repayment to the state of moneys advanced in aid of railroad companies, counties and cities[, towns and villages], at such times, in such manner and with interest at such rate, that the state shall be able to pay when due the portion of the state debt equal to the proceeds which shall have been so advanced, and interest thereon. The provisions of this article, not inconsistent with this section, relating to the issuance of bonds for a debt or debts of the state and the maturity and payment thereof, shall apply to a state debt or debts created pursuant to this section; except that the law authorizing the contracting of such debt or debts shall take effect without submission to the people pursuant to section four of this article. The aggregate amount of a state debt or debts which may be created pursuant to this section, as hereby amended, shall not exceed the difference between the amount of the debt or debts heretofore created or authorized by law, under the former provisions of this section, and the sum of three hundred million dollars; and the legislature, by law, may authorize or require a county to bear all or part of the portion of the expense of any such crossing elimination, heretofore begun or authorized, which was imposed by former provisions of this section on a city, town or village therein.

§ 2. Resolved (if the Assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

* So in original. [Evidently should be "conformity."]

AMENDMENT NUMBER ELEVEN

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION OF THE SENATE AND ASSEMBLY PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE EIGHT OF THE CONSTITUTION, IN RELATION TO LIMITATION OF INDEBTEDNESS OF CITIES.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That section ten of article eight of the constitution be amended to read as follows:

§ 10. No county, city, town or village shall hereafter give any money or property, or loan its money or credit to or in aid of any individual, association or corporation, or become directly or indirectly the owner of stock in, or bonds of, any association or corporation; nor shall any such county, city, town or village be allowed to incur any indebtedness except for county, city, town or village purposes. This section shall not prevent such county, city, town or village from making such provision for the aid or support of its poor as may be authorized by law. No county or city shall be allowed to become indebted for any purpose or in any manner to an amount which including existing indebtedness, shall exceed ten per centum of the assessed valuation of the real estate of such county or city subject to taxation, as it appeared by the assessment rolls of said county or city on the last assessment for state or county taxes prior to the incurring of such indebtedness; and all indebtedness in excess of such limitation, except such as now may exist, shall be absolutely void, except as herein otherwise provided. No county or city whose present indebtedness exceeds ten per centum of the assessed valuation of its real estate subject to taxation, shall be allowed to become indebted in any further amount until such indebtedness shall be reduced within such limit. This section shall not be construed to prevent the issuing of certificates of indebtedness or revenue bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes for amounts actually contained or to be contained in the taxes for the year when such certificates or revenue bonds are issued and payable out of such taxes; nor to prevent the city of New York from issuing bonds to be redeemed out of the tax levy for the year next succeeding the year of their issue, provided that the amount of such bonds which may be issued in any one year in excess of the limitations herein contained shall not exceed one-tenth of one per centum of the assessed valuation of the real estate of said city subject to taxation. [Nor shall this section be construed to prevent the issue of bonds to provide for the supply of water; but the term of the bonds issued to provide for the supply of water, in excess of the limitations of indebtedness fixed herein, shall not exceed twenty years, and a sinking fund shall be created on the issuing of the said bonds for their redemption, by raising annually a sum which will produce an amount equal to the sum of the principal and interest of said bonds at their maturity.] All certificates of indebtedness or revenue bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes which are not retired within five years after their date of issue, [and bonds issued to provide for the supply of water,] and any debt hereafter incurred by any portion or part of a city, if there shall be any such debt, shall be included in ascertaining the power of the city to become otherwise indebted; except that debts heretofore or hereafter incurred by any city [of the first class after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and four, and debts incurred by any city of the second class after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and eight, and debts incurred by any city of the third class after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and ten,] to provide for the supply of water, shall not be so included; and except that debts not exceeding in the aggregate the sum of ten million dollars, heretofore or hereafter incurred by any city with a population of not less than two hundred and fifty thousand and not more than one million, and except that debts not exceeding in the aggregate the sum of five million dollars, heretofore or hereafter incurred by any city with a population of not less than one hundred and seventy-five thousand and not more than two hundred and fifty thousand, for so much of the cost and expense of any public improvement as may be required by the ordinance or other local legislative law therein assessing the same to be raised by assessment upon local property or territory, shall not be so included; and except further that any debt hereafter incurred by the city of New York for a public improvement owned or to be owned by the city, which yields to the city current net revenue, after making any necessary allowance for repairs and maintenance for which the city is liable, in excess of the interest on said debt and of the annual installments necessary for its amortization may be excluded in ascertaining the power of said city to become otherwise indebted, provided that a sinking fund for its amortization shall have been established and maintained and that the indebtedness shall not be so excluded during any period of time when the revenue aforesaid shall not be sufficient to equal the said interest and amortization installments, and except further that any indebtedness heretofore incurred by the city of New York for any rapid transit or dock investment may be so excluded proportionately to the extent to which the current net revenue received by said city therefrom shall meet the interest and amortization installments thereof, provided that any increase in the debt incurring power of the city of New York which shall result from the exclusion of debts heretofore incurred shall be available only for the acquisition or construction of properties to be used for rapid transit or dock purposes. The legislature shall prescribe the method by which and the terms and conditions under which the amount of any debt incurred by the city of New York for a [illegible] to be so excluded shall be determined, and no such debt shall be excluded except in accordance with the determination so prescribed. The legislature may in its discretion confer appropriate jurisdiction on the appellate division of the supreme court in the first judicial department for the purpose of determining the amount of any debt to be so excluded. No indebtedness of a city valid at the time of its inception shall thereafter become invalid by reason of the operation of any of the provisions of this section. Whenever the boundaries of any city are the same as those of a county, or when any city shall include within its boundaries more than one county, the power of any county wholly included within such city to become indebted shall cease, but the debt of the county, heretofore existing, shall not, for the purposes of this section, be reckoned as a part of the city debt. The amount hereafter to be raised by tax for county or city purposes, in any county containing a city of over one hundred thousand inhabitants, or in any such city of this state, in addition to providing for the principal and interest of the [existing] county or city debt, shall not in the aggregate exceed in any one year two per centum of the assessed valuation of the real and personal estate of such county or city, to be ascertained as prescribed in this section in respect to county or city debt.

§ 2. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That article eight of the constitution be amended by adding a new section to follow section ten, to be section ten-a, to read as follows:

§ 10-a. Notwithstanding any of the limitations prescribed by the preceding section, debts may be incurred by the city of New York after January first, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, for the construction or equipment, or both, of new rapid transit railroads not exceeding the sum of three hundred million dollars, and such debts shall not be included in computing the debt limit of such city for the purpose of ascertaining the power of such city to become otherwise indebted.

§ 3. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

Section 1. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That article twelve of the constitution be amended by adding thereto a new section to follow section seven, to become section eight, to read as follows:

§ 8. Annexation of territory to cities. No territory shall be annexed to any city until the people of the territory proposed to be annexed shall have consented to such annexation by a majority vote on a referendum called for that purpose.

§ 2. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State Restoring Old Battle Fields

Where American Colonists Won Right to Govern Themselves—Advisory Board Plans to Consider Entire Campaign as a Unit—Work on Saratoga Battlefield Already Under Way.

Albany, July 26.—The entire Burgoyne campaign, which culminated in the defeat and surrender of General John Burgoyne and his army on the Saratoga battlefield in October, 1777, will be treated as a unit in New York state's plan to restore and properly mark and monument these historic battlefields.

The routes followed by Burgoyne's army from Canada through Champlain and the Hudson valley, the route followed by General St. Leger from Quebec to Oswego and on to Fort Stanwix and Oriskany where he was defeated by General Herkimer, trails of the Indians from their villages through the Finger Lake section of the state to join St. Leger at Oswego and through the Adirondacks to join General Burgoyne at Crown Point, the route taken by the American colonists up the Mohawk valley and through to the relief of Fort Stanwix with the battles of Bennington, Oriskany, Fort Stanwix and the final battle at Saratoga, which was followed by the surrender of Burgoyne and the collapse of the campaign, are all included in the plans of the Advisory Board of Battlefields and Historic Sites which is now engaged in the restoration and rehabilitation of these sites in time for the celebration of the 150th anniversary of Burgoyne's surrender next year.

Work Well Under Way.

The work for the restoration of the Saratoga battlefield is already well under way. Under the direction of Mayor George O. Slingerland of Mechanicsville, who is chairman of the General Advisory Board and also of the committee on the Saratoga battlefield, the field has been surveyed, inside farm fences will be removed as speedily as possible and an outside fence around the entire reservation will be completed.

A complete plan for the restoration of the field includes the establishment of a parking place at the southern entrance of the reservation, another parking place on the hill north of the Nielson barn commanding a view of the battlefield to the north. A third parking place at the head of the great ravine where the bloodiest fighting of the battle occurred, a fourth parking place at the corner of the state road, and the Freeman farm looking south over the battlefield, and a fifth on the Freeman farm where most of the heavy fighting took place, with a view to the south. These five parking places will give an orderly system of parking and the best possible opportunity for viewing the battlefield from advantageous points.

The site of the old powder magazine used by the American forces on the Nielson farm, has been definitely located and the debris removed down to the stone bottom of the magazine. This magazine was constructed of rough field stones, many of which have been scattered and used in stone walls on the farm. These are being recovered and the magazine is being restored to its original form.

Select Site for Monument.

Across the road from old Ft. Nielson is the field where more than 1,000 American soldiers were buried. In this field there will be at once fenced off a field about 500 feet square so that a start can be made for the state to erect a monument for the patriotic men who are buried there.

At the southern entrance to the battlefield reservation is an old orchard containing a well that was dug for the use of the American army. This it is planned to restore with an old style sweep and in the orchard adjacent it is planned to make a public camping ground.

Large painted signs will be erected at the entrance to and exit from the reservation on the state highway. Other signs will be erected at all points of interest along the road pointing the distance and direction where the different engagements occurred and where different bodies of soldiers were located, together with other historic data telling the entire story of the battle.

On the heights in a direct east line from the Bennington monument and a direct south line from the Schuylerville monument will be a steel observation tower, from the top of which visitors will be able to see not only the whole field of the battle of Saratoga, but also the Bennington battlefield, and the scene of Burgoyne's surrender at Schuylerville.

At a meeting of the Advisory Board on Battlefields and Historic Sites held in the office of the Conservation Commission on July 22, sub-committees appointed to prepare plans for the restoration of the Oriskany battlefield and Ft. Stanwix, the battle of Bennington and the marking of the trail along which General Knox hauled the cannon captured by the Americans at Ticonderoga to Cambridge where they were used against the British in the siege of Boston, all submitted tentative plans for the restoration of these fields, and also for the erection of a block house to mark the scenes of the massacre of Jane McCrea.

The battle of Saratoga was one of the fifteen decisive battles of the world which changed the map of Europe and enabled the American colonists to set up a government that has stood as a pattern for the entire world for one hundred and fifty years.

There's no substitute for reliability.

The kind of mother who used to say that her twelve-year-old daughter was six, so that she could travel on half-fare, now says she's sixteen, so that she can drive the car.

The radio industry is in its infancy. That's why the darn things kick up such a racket when you have company.

When a bad dog bites a tax assessor, you never hear of anybody but the assessor wanting to kill the dog.

"I liked that young fellow you were with the other night, so I asked him to dinner this evening," said the hardware merchant to his daughter. "I told him to drop 'round in his business clothes."

"Oh, father!" said the girl, "he's a swimming instructor."

Getting the Breaks.

A Ford once left our neighborhood
bedight with banners gay
With envious eyes I watched it start,
and blithely draw away.
It bore above its flippant cardboard
sign, "Exuse our Dust",
A blazing placard with the slogan,
"Florida or Bust".

But just today when I was glooming
o'er my salaried lot
Wraith like I saw that car steam up
like ancient coffee pot;
It rattled round the corner, thick
with yellow mud encrusted,
Bearing this legend on its body,
"Florida—and busted".

Instead of being a comforter a girl is sometimes a wet blanket.

The house-to-house canvasser had talked for an hour.

"This egg-beater," he said, "speaks for itself."

"Then," interrupted the housewife, "suppose you keep quiet for a moment and give it a chance."

A critic says that modern girls are just educated dolls. He may be right, but they don't squeal for "Papa" and "Ma-ma" when they're squeezed.

Some substitutes may be as good as the real article, but money, though useful at all times, is a poor substitute for happiness.

When a couple gets married who have billed and cooed for years, the cooing stops, but the billing goes on.

Epitaph.

Here lies Constellation Mars.
Who loved to gaze up at the stars;
All sorts came; his eyes were dim;
And now the stars gaze down on him!

No girl is really popular if she can have a birthday and get less than five manicure sets.

Parsival—"That was the most embarrassing cut of all, as the poet says."

Penelope—"What was that?"

"I showed her one of my boyhood pictures with my father holding me on his knee, and she said, 'Ky, who is the ventriloquist?'"

Days Becoming Longer

The enjoyment with of the long days that the day were longer is being realized, for the earth is steadily receding into night of winter. It will be some time, however, before we need much, our habits on this account, forcing the lengthening of the day to amount to anywhere of a month in a thousand years, physical evidences to that matter of the change is found for sun.

Wanted Her to Shiver

Little Miss heard it explained that "shiver" means "to grow cooler." A few evenings later we went in a movie and in front of Miss's eyes and a very short woman. After squirming around for some time in her seat, trying to look past the wide shoulders of the woman in front, Miss turned over and whispered, "Mama, tell the lady behind shivering a little so I can see the picture!"

That Did It

Outside the storm raged. The thunder was deafening. The lightning flashed almost continuously. Presently a bolt struck some part of the house and knocked the owner completely out of bed. He rose, rubbed his eyes, yawned, and said, "All right, dear, I'll get up."

Egotism Condemned

Egotism is more like an offense than a crime, though the allowable to speak of yourself provided nothing is advanced in your own favor; but I cannot help suspecting that those who abuse themselves are, in reality, angling for approbation.—Simmonsen.

Pirates Making A Strong Bid

Good Pitching Will Again Put the Pittsburgh Nationals Out in Front —"Anything Can Happen In a Race Like This," Says McGraw.

New York, July 26.—The Giants have met the common enemy in the west and he is neither theirs, nor vice versa. In simpler words, they left New York on July 7 with a pennant chance and they are returning, nineteen days later, with a pennant chance.

John McGraw, who has studied the situation far more carefully than most, gives it up.

"Anything can happen in a race like this," says Mac. "To my mind the small advantage that the three leading teams have in the percentage table is more than offset by the fact that approximately three-fourths of the remaining games will be away from home. This is especially true of the Reds, already a bad road team, nor is it probable that the Cardinals can come close to duplicating their last swing through the east."

You will note that the little Napoleon had nothing to say about the Pirates. Likely enough it is his opinion, as it most certainly is the opinion of his players, that the team which trims the Pirates will get all the money.

The Corsairs were not, when the Giants were in Pittsburgh, the impressive team that they should be, but they do carry a punch and lots of speed. With any kind of pitching at all they will be dangerous in every game from now on, because they have also a decided psychological advantage. They won last season and they know it is the history of the game that a new champion repeats. They haven't held the title long enough to get blase about it. Thus, they are sure to have both confidence and the will to win the coming battle through the stretch.

After staying on top most of the season, the Reds dropped back during their home stay. That is not calculated to improve their morale, especially with the memory of their last disastrous road trip in mind.

Hornsby is so far off form that his aspiring St. Louis team is laboring under a pronounced physical and mental handicap. If Hornsby today were the Hornsby of 1925, or '24, or '23, or what you will, this writer would not have the slightest hesitancy in picking the Cardinals as the next champions, even in view of their past performance record of the last fifty years.

The Cubs scarcely figure. A good home stay by either the Giants or Robins would turn the trick, but neither have shown themselves capable of any protracted winning streak. So, we come back to the Pirates. They are making signs as if they mean to board the treasure ship again and it will take some real fighting to keep them off.

Industrial League Game Tonight

The U. & D. will cross bats with the Municipal Nine at the Athletic Field tonight. The Railroaders have to win the game in order to keep in the pennant race. Black will most likely do the pitching for the Railroaders with Smedes catching. Dewey Van Buren is slated to work for the City. Game called at 6:30.

Ravena Beats All-Stars, 7-6

Sunday at Ravena the Ravena-Coeymans A. C. beat the All Stars out in one of the best games played there this season by a 7-6 score.

Smith, who has twirled good ball for the upstate club this season was sent to the showers in the fourth inning. He was nicked for six safe bingles. Gene Hummer who relieved him allowed the same number of hits.

Hank Cragan twirling for the local club gave but six hits, but Cragan was very wild giving seven free passes. This with a couple of costly errors cost the All-Stars the game.

Vogt, the locals' first sacker, sent one of Smith's offerings for the circuit in the third. Moore and Knight did the playing around short and second both showing up very good.

Two walks and four hits gave the Kingston club three more runs in the fourth inning. In the fifth frame the Ravena club sent one more runner over the rubber. The sixth frame saw Cragan give three free passes, one hit and a bad error, giving the upstate club four runs. The locals pushed two more across the rubber in the seventh on singles by Lynch and Cragan and an error by the upstate first sacker.

Colonials Drub Sheridan Caseys In Dual Bill

Brooklyn Nine No Match for Phelpsmen Here Sunday—First Game Ends 14 to 0 and Second 19 to 4.

Suffering from an extreme case of sleeping sickness or some such malady the Sheridan Caseys of Brooklyn bored a fair size crowd of Sunday spectators as they slumbered through both ends of their scheduled double bill with the Colonials at the Fair Grounds. The Phelpsmen were never challenged once in the opener and took the farce by a 14 to 0 tally. The Brooklynites woke once in the second and scored four runs and then went back and were soon deader to the world than ever as the Kingstonians frolicked around the bags with 18 markers. Nobody enjoys to watch suffering so the first comedy was cut short in the seventh inning by Umpire Connolly after both teams had decided that there wasn't quite enough competition. All in all the Colonials' run register went up 33 points and the hit recorder also mounted 33 degrees.

The visitors never let out a murmur in the first half of the double bill and the Phelpsmen had fourteen runs at the end of the fourth frame. The locals took life easy for the final two frames of the opener thinking the Brooklynites might act the least bit appreciative in the second and show a little life.

By the time the seventh session came around the fans were begging to give the down-river outfit another chance so the two teams got together and decided that the first was a complete failure and drew the curtain on this comedy. So they started all over again but the Caseys would do nothing in this affair but score four markers while the Colonials were running up nineteen.

Bernie Mc Cue was alone more of an attraction than the whole visiting outfit. Bernie did something that none of the locals have accomplished this season in knocking two home runs in one afternoon. Both of Bernie's circuits were whoppers over the left field barrier. Bernie got the first one in the opening game with the bases barren but he got his second in the final game with Allen on the bags.

The Caseys contributed thirteen errors to the Colonials' two victories. Six times the Brooklynites were erratic in the first match and then they booted seven more in the nightcap session.

Bob Cooney was on the mound for the Colonials in the first game and had a wonderful time with the Caseys, giving them but six hits. Art Smith was the choice for the second and he also found it nothing short of a cinch. But the Caseys stirred a little in their slumbers in the third frame of Art's reign and scored three runs. Hansen and Marsini each singled at the start of the third. After an out Grady doubled and Hansen scored. McCarthy pushed out the fourth hit of the frame and both Marsini and Grady crossed the platter. Once again they showed signs of awakening in the final frame two men singled and the Caseys brought home their fourth and last run.

Marsini stared on the mound for the visitors in the opening contest but he was voted a leave of absence after the second as the Kingstonians had six runs. Marsini had been a right hand flinger so at the start of the third Jimmy Anton, a portsider went to the mound. In the second issue Marsini went to work again and the Colonials lambasted him for seventeen hits.

Wildness on the part of the enemy twirlers had a lot to do in getting the Colonials' runs in the first match. The moundsmen issued passes at the wrong time and then a boot or two would pop up if the locals were not harvesting quite enough. Three of the Kingston runs came in on wild pitches. Allen, McCue and Karis got doubles and then Bernie caught hold of his circuit slice in the fourth.

Wildness still prevailed in the second contest with Marsini in the box. A run came in on Marsini's wild pitch in the second also and he was still free with his passes. Smith, Allen and Peters all caught hold of triples in the second match. Besides his homer McCue got a double.

Ferdie Allen helped to relieve the monotony in the nightcap session with a few acts of comedy with himself as the leading and only character.

Art Smith got on to Marsini suddenly in the second game. Art fanned the first two trips to the plate and then the third time he crashed into a husky triple.

Won 20, lost 11, tied, 1. Pct., .646.

Drink With Sticks

An ancestor to the straw through which we sip our sodas has been discovered in East Africa, says Popular Science Monthly. Yak trees there have cavities in their trunks in which rain water collects. The natives frequently carry "drinking sticks" two feet long and half an inch in diameter, which they use to sip the water out of the trees.

Games This Week For Colonials

The Colonials travel today to Nyack where they meet the Boston Black Sox who they recently beat out in a series. This will be a twilight match. Wednesday and Thursday nights the Chappie Johnson All-Stars will be at the Fair Grounds again. Chappie is giving the Colonials a tough time this season and these two matches ought to prove interesting.

On Friday the locals will journey to Stattsville where they will meet the club of that place in a twilight match. Sunday the Penn Red Caps of New York city will be at the Fair Grounds. This club is rated as one of the fastest semi-pro clubs of the east.

Kingston K. of C. Beat Hudson

In one of those slugging contests which took ten innings to decide, the local K. of C. baseball team defeated the Hudson Club at Hudson, Sunday by the score of 13 to 11.

Jim Volker on the mound for the Knights pitched excellent ball throughout, striking out nine batsmen.

The Caseys scored three runs in the opening frame on hits by Sickler and Leskie combined with Mc Grane's home run.

Both teams managed to score thereafter, the score at the end of the ninth being tied at 11 markers. In the tenth the locals brought in two markers on Davitt's double, Leskie's single together with a stolen base and a wild pitch.

Cahill's catch in right field in the ninth inning with the winning run on base was a feature of the game. Leskie, the Knights' second baseman, had a perfect day at bat getting four out of four, while Sickler, local short stop, also got four hits.

HURLERS SPEEDIER THAN AMOS RUSIE

Never at Any Time Had the Speed of Johnson.

Clark Griffith, in the course of a talk on fast ball pitching, made the interesting assertion that Amos Rusie never at any time had the speed of Johnson. He went further and declared there never have been half a dozen pitchers with more speed than the old-time Giant.

"There is a general but wrong belief," said Griff, "that Rusie was exceptionally fast. He was fast, all right, good and fast, but it's a joke to compare his speed with Johnson's. What Rusie did have was the fastest curve ball ever pitched and the best curve, but his curve was as swift as his fast ball. That's what gave the impression of his having unusual speed.

"He got so he had great control of that curve and then he became a great pitcher. I've seen him at three and nothing, then hook three fast ones over. As a speedy pitcher, however, he hadn't as fast a ball as Johnson, Bill Donovan, Joe Wood, Ed Crane or Danny Vance.

"Johnson is the fastest of them all, and the next fastest was Bill Donovan. Jesett Meekin was wonderfully fast and speedier than Rusie. But nobody ever equaled Johnson's speed of ten years ago."

Tools driven by electricity shave their brandies alike with laborer and employer. The electric drill, for instance, has lifted the digger out of the class of ordinary labor, raised his wages and made him skilled. The work he does is more valuable because he can do so much more of it. He can literally move mountains.

Their Badge

"Married men should wear something to indicate plainly that they are married," says a critic. They generally do by wearing a suit of the year before last this year and next.

World's Southernmost City

Punta Arenas, situated on the Straits of Magellan, South America, is said to be the southernmost city in the world. It was founded in 1843 by Chile as a convict station and has about 30,000 inhabitants.

"FOUND!" You'll Say Because "It's Toasted"

• LUCKY STRIKES are made from the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, perfectly blended.

Besides this supreme quality of leaf tobacco as compared with all other cigarettes—"IT'S TOASTED".

Just what does this mean—this phrase, "IT'S TOASTED"?

The tobacco is oven toasted at very high heats for 45 minutes; then chilled with the moisture completely restored. The toasting brings out the hidden flavors of the superbly fine tobacco. The chilling seals in these flavors; seals in, too, the moisture that has been restored. It all acts like a cold plunge on the pores of the body.

That's why LUCKIES taste so good. Why LUCKIES are always fresh when they come to you. Why millions prefer this uniquely fine cigarette.

BECAUSE IT'S TOASTED

ARE YOU GUILTY?

A FARMER carrying an express package from a big mail-order house was accosted by a local dealer.

"Why didn't you buy that bill of goods from me? I could have delivered the same, and I could have come personally to see you about it, and talk to you, and all that sort of thing."

The farmer looked at the merchant and said:

"Why don't you subscribe to your home newspaper and read its columns of live news?"

Simple Frocks in Standard Prints

Navy and White and Black and White Among Season's Favorites.

Lanvin's midseason collection, which has been shown informally, presents many simple dresses interpreted in small navy and white, or black and white prints.

Some boleros also are shown, for instance a black satin frock with a bolero which fits smoothly except for the cape-like flare on one shoulder at the back of the dress.

Black laces over flesh, also black tulle embroidered in black silk, are presented for evening wear.

Ensembles for children feature two-piece frocks of crepe de chine, which are completed by capecoats developed in rough woolens.

The bloused line is conspicuous in imported models, appearing frequently at the back, and also in softly eased fashion in all-around treatment. It is made more definite, due to the snug hipline that prevails for the most part, with set-in belts of narrow proportions and the belts contributing to this end.

A number of interesting treatments are accorded tunics, as, for instance, in a model showing the tunic at the sides only, cut very full, and distending from the foundation to which they are attached. Another arresting tunic treatment is discerned in a Martial et Armand costume combining velvet and taffeta, the crisp medium serving for the tunic and cut in shaped petal-like devices that give an effect of width to the silhouette.

Aside from the period gowns, the line is straight with a movement not easily managed. One dressmaker accomplished this effect with an almost imperceptible "soupcon" or tuck-up in the dress top. Another holds to the straight top with a flare at the hem which may be an "enforme" insertion of plaits. There is considerable side fullness; there is sometimes a front flare. Nothing new, one might remark; simply new wine in old bottles.

There is a bustle tendency; whether it will catch on or not is a matter of conjecture. A summer model in white crepe has a lot of plaited, narrow flounces at the edge of the long tunic and comprising the length of the short skirt. These are arranged in shell fashion and as they curve up on the tunic there is placed a wide bow of silver, gold and rose ribbon. The mannequin that displayed this gown wore a wide-brimmed hat of silk straw with a back fall of rose ostrich feathers.

Sport Ensemble and an Oriental Jacket

This lovely sport ensemble features an oriental jacket, heavily embroidered on cream-colored linen. It is trimmed with bands of rose-colored velvet and is worn over a simple sport dress of cream-colored satin. The hat is of palest pink felt.

Rubberized Traveling Cases, Envelope Style

Rubberized traveling cases in flat envelope styles and draw-string pouch effects are being shown for all kinds of travel. The envelope models are larger than those of previous seasons and have more compartments. An additional feature of these is that they may be had in sets which comprise a separate case for the face cloth and a good-sized circular one to hold either a medium or large-size powder puff. These sets come in a variety of colors from the very light shades in crotonese effects to the darker ones which include some tapestry design. The pouch bags have a flat circular bottom and several inner pockets. These, of course, are roomy and would naturally be preferred by the woman who carries a large supply of cosmetics. Soiree silks are used in these and gay colors predominate. For camp use both the envelope and pouch cases may be had in dark gray and khaki.

Another Paradox

"To be happy, one must work," says a wise writer. Which suggests the paradox that many who do not labor labor under the delusion that they can find happiness without labor, which is impossible.—Boston Transcript.

Eleanor Gunn On Fashions

Recent Ceremonious Occasions Abroad, as Well as in America, Tend Toward a Season of Extravagant Dressing.

It is difficult to think of extravagant simplicity, perhaps, but then simplicity is relative. What to some women would seem like the most extravagant and gorgeous raiment, seems to others a simple, little frock.

Advices from everywhere—and the smart world is pretty well scattered at present—seem to indicate that while sports clothes are simple, in a sense, and lines are perhaps simple, too, the general impression of evening modes, at least, is one of great brilliancy. This is because of the continued use of gold and silver, and, in their most dazzling form, of sequins—little, twinkling spangles that catch and toss back the light—until the gowns on a dance floor have the effect of myriads of tiny mirrors. One certainly reads of and, sees evening wraps that are nothing short of regal, and give no hint of economy or of a tendency to become simpler during the hot weather.

There are brocades of all sorts, velvet and magnificent embroideries, as well as beaded effects; and there are—praises be!—the charming graceful shawls, embroidered or plain, but always deeply fringed. Over many a stunning black gown goes a coat of brilliant lacquer red and gold brocade or some other exotic thing—and the black dresses about which one hears so much via Paris have become spangled and jetted when they are not liberally bespinkled with diamantes. As to jewels, there is more than a casual interest in emeralds just now, this being particularly true at Deauville.

First "L" Line

The first successful elevated railway line in the world was opened to traffic in New York 56 years ago. This was the first 9-mile line, part of which the extension to Forty-eighth street, was recently torn down. Later in the same year the Third avenue line was opened. An overhead had been made for years previously to construct an elevated railway.

And Now the Cowgirl Is Declared a Myth

A former state official of Kansas has declared that the cowgirl of fiction and tradition is a "mythical creature." If he had merely called it, perhaps no one would have said much attention, but he has written it in reminiscences filed in the archives of the Kansas Historical society at Topeka. He has taken from the writers of stories of the great open spaces a prize treasure, and he has created doubt in the minds of their readers.

Are we to believe that the splendid creature who rode like the whirlwind and outshot Wild Bill Hickok is a myth? Have she dashed through page after page, turning stampeded cattle into a gentle, lowing herd by her mere presence after the cowboys had given up the job and how, when desert water holes proved dry, she saved the herd from dying of thirst by discovering through infinitesimal streams of crystal purity? What a glorious figure she was riding at the head of a cowboy cavalcade to take vengeance on a band of "rustlers," and how indescribably brave when she dashed, a two-gun woman, into a lynching bee and rescued her hero! Are we to believe that all this never happened and that the cowgirl never existed?—New York Sun.

Sent to Destruction Over Niagara Falls

At least three vessels have gone over Niagara falls, says the Boston Globe in reply to a query. The first was in 1827, when an old craft was sent over with a bear, a fox, a buffalo, a dog and some geese as passengers. The bear jumped from the boat before it reached the rapids, swam to the shore and was rescued. The geese went over the falls and came to the shore below alive, while the other animals were not seen.

Another vessel, the Detroit, that had belonged to Commodore Perry's fleet, was started over the channel in the winter of 1841, but grounded midway in the rapids and was finally broken up by the ice.

In 1857 a burning vessel was sent down the rapids and over the falls. This was described as a most magnificent sight.

High Winds on Peak

Half a century ago a group of hardy observers of the weather spent their winters on Mount Washington. They lived in a low stone house, chained to the solid rock, says a writer in the American Magazine. They found that the wind on the peak often blew 100 miles an hour. On one occasion it romped across the summit at the rate of 180 miles an hour, three or four times as fast as an express train.

Outlines of Poincare Plan

Paris, July 26.—Premier Poincare tomorrow will lay a financial program before the chamber of deputies which calls upon France to provide its own remedies for the present financial crisis.

Outlines of the Poincare financial program, as given to the International News Service today, were as follows:

1. Immediate increase in direct taxation, the amount as yet unfixed, but the proceeds to be applied to the sinking fund for the reimbursement of state bonds.

2. Immediate increase in in-direct taxation, such increases to include the business turn-over tax, a tax upon colonial products, and a general import tax.

3. Immediate increase of all railroad fares.

M. Poincaire believes that the tax increases will yield more than 5,000,000,000 francs during the second half of the fiscal year.

The increase yield will be applied immediately to balancing the budget and for current fiscal needs.

With this program before it the confidence in the franc was again demonstrated today when it continued to show strength and as quoted at noon at 38.87 to the dollar.

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 26.—Price trends were slightly higher in an inactive, dull and featureless stock market today. Professional trading in the motor stocks and a few of the pool favorites in the industrials and specialties furnished what ever show of activity the market was able to make, and prices moved about irregularly without much connection with the events of the day.

After early irregularity, the market recovered under the lead of General Motors and United States Steel, directors of both corporations being expected to issue highly favorable statements of earnings this week, according to market gossip.

Strength in United States Steel was due to the expectation of a favorable earnings report tomorrow rather than to any immediate prospect of an increase in the cash dividend or a special distribution of the corporation's plus. An active fall business was also expected for the equipment companies, based on the increasing inquiry for cars and engines by the leading railroad companies. Some buying of equipment stocks followed the issuance of these reports, but no marked improvements in prices were noted. Copper and oil stocks were dull and irregular.

The dairy farmers who expect to sell Grade "A" milk in Kingston after September 1, to comply with the requirements of the board of health, are having their cows tested for tuberculosis. One of the latest tested by Dr. H. F. Fleming is the herd of Edward McSpiritt of Hurley avenue, and Mr. McSpiritt considers himself very fortunate, as this is the first time he had them tested and every one successfully passed the tuberculosis test, and will be in a position to furnish his customers with Grade "A" milk as soon as he receives a permit from the health board of Kingston. Farmers to Make Tour Wednesday

Four Farms to Be Visited by Ulster County Farm Bureau Members and Families—Farm Problems to be Explained.

Plans are now completed for the Rondout Valley farm management tour scheduled for Wednesday, July 28, according to Farm Bureau Manager Wigsten. Mimeographed circulars showing a map of the route of the tour and the time of stops have been furnished all Farm Bureau members, unique banners will be attached to each car at the first stop indicating they are parties on the tour, arrangements have been completed for water and shade at the lunch hour and other essential points for the guidance and comfort of the party have been looked after. Professor I. F. Hall of the farm management department at Cornell has wired his intentions of arriving in Kingston on Tuesday evening, assuring those planning on taking in the trip that they will be met at the scheduled time by Professor Hall on Wednesday.

The purpose of a farm management tour is to study various factors influencing farm incomes on different types of successful farms. The farm to be studied should show good crop and animal production, diversity of source of income, should show high receipts, low expenses or both, should be a combination of a good farm and a good farmer. The four farms to be visited have been carefully selected for the above qualities. Professor Hall will point out the value of all the above points in influencing the farm income and expenses. The value of keeping crop and animal production records will also be stressed. At one stop some time will be given to a discussion of remodeling of a basement stable while other useful discussions will be taken up at each place. The following time and place schedule will be closely followed:

Milliard Davis's farm one mile north of Kerhonkson at 9 a. m., leave 10:30, arrive John Schoonmaker's one mile east of Accord at 11. Picnic dinner here, leave 1 p. m.; arrive Ganse Beach's farm one half mile north High Falls 1:30, leave 2:30, arrive John Beatty's farm at Kingston City line 3. Tour completed 4 p. m. Entire schedule on standard time. Tourists are urged to be on time especially at the first stop to avoid delaying the procession. Extra effort has been laid on the fact that this tour is for the whole family, men, women and children.

In Luxemburg

Woman of Luxemburg Tying Vines.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

LITTLE Luxemburg, in an easily accessible position between France, Germany and Belgium, receives, nonetheless, scant attention from the army of tourists that marches through its larger neighbors. And perhaps the casual tourist, hardly pausing on his hurried way from steamer to steamer, would find little to interest him in the small state. The land is like the people. One must truly fraternize with it. After a first motor ride in the country one is likely to be disappointed. But let him take his time tramping and cycling hundreds of miles more and he will probably enjoy them all.

The grand duchy has an area of 999 square miles, marked down from four times as many, and a population of 270,000, also much below the maximum of former days.

For ages the city of Luxemburg was an inland Gibraltar and a mighty fortress. It prepared for war and got it. Raise and raze was the constant game. In 1867 the fortress was dismantled. This was no blow to the pride of the people. Far from it. The guard that marched out was Prussian. Not only was the erstwhile forbidding city now open to all, but it began to grow outward.

Beautiful parks, laid out by the man who made a floral paradise of the Casino at Monte Carlo, have taken the place of the old fortifications.

The Adolphe bridge, spanning the gorge of the Petrusse, makes the approach to the former fortress too simple. What from the encircling gorges is still a Gibraltar becomes merely another bit of plateau, which one reaches from the station without any perceptible climb. One may enter Luxemburg in a limousine without realizing what a commanding position the former fortress holds.

In and About the City.

Within the town, the cathedral is the most important edifice. The Renaissance entrance is ornately decorated with fierce lion heads, cherubim and saints. The interior, whose shadowy distance ends in the wonder-working Maria Consolatrix, which makes Luxemburg another Lourdes, conveys no impression of unity.

A feature which links the capital with its state is the open-air market in the Place Guillaume, where dog-drawn carts are seen and where vegetables are sold from a combination of baby-carriage chassis and hand-built body which the women wheel in from the country or the station.

Luxemburg has lovely roses and exports new varieties to many lands; but these beauties lack such a setting as the velvet lawns of Portland or of the Riviera. In the valley gorges writhing around the base of the capital are the industrial suburbs, devoted to making gloves, cloth and beer. Beside the streams, which only a poetic fancy could call crystal, the women launder billows of cloth with that old-world cunning which knows that even wet laundry is lighter to carry than sufficient water, and a light lunch, light gossip and sunlight lighter than either.

In their season, white and purple lilacs overhang the narrow streams and semi-circular arches are completed to circles below precipices over whose edge, like some adventurous, half-frightened schoolboy, the city peers.

Church Celebrations.

What the Sokol is to Czechoslovakia and the singing bands of Esthonia, the Roman Catholic church is to the Grand Duchy. It is the chief unifying force in a land whose non-Catholic elements are negligible. During the Octave, now extended from eight to fifteen days, each church body in the Grand Duchy assembles, finds band and banners, and goes to the capital to honor the wonder-working Virgin and beseech her aid.

The two great annual celebrations are the Octave procession in Luxemburg, the fifth Sunday after Easter, and the Dancing procession Echternach on the Tuesday of Pentecost.

No photographs can suggest the color and scope of the Octave procession, in which thousands of simple folk, mostly in black, chant their litanies; in which bright banners, carried in the line of march, vie with those hung across the narrow streets; in which facades of business blocks are so hidden behind rows of Christmas trees that one almost fancies himself in some woodland path and suspects that a large part of the reforestation service consists in growing pine trees for the church; in which red and white, gold and shimmery blue, shot with silver, give a gorgeousness to the dignitaries.

Scores of young boys, temporarily subdued in scarlet and lace, accompany the figures of the holy family or of the miracle-working Maria Consolatrix. There is a long double line of first communicants—the boys in dark suits, with stiff shirts and white ties, and white bows on their left arms; the girls, like juvenile brides, in veil and coronet. Tiny maids, wearing gold crowns and carrying gold flowers, many of them with wings fastened to their backs, succeed in looking humanly angelic and angelically human at the same time.

The Dancing procession at Echternach is unique. It started as a religious dance, but whether Christian or pagan one cannot now say. Once, without just excuse, it was not held, and the foot-and-mouth disease, from which the land is seldom entirely free, ravaged the cattle. Each year the dance attracts more and more visitors, but is losing its character. Few dancers now use the conventional three steps forward, two back, which gave this procession its peculiar quality.

Many Beautiful Places.

There is no outstanding beauty spot in the grand duchy. Each cherished scene has its champions. The whole is greater than any of its parts; the state more lovely than any site within it.

Vianden, with its fine old ruin; Clervaux, with its picturesque chateau going to the dogs, geese and goats, and its Benedictine abbey luxuriously growing on the heights; Remich, through which the Romans were first to enter and last to leave; Mondorf, whose waters cure everything but baldness; Berdorf, where the caretaker sweeps aside the skirts of a Christian altar, lets down a polychrome panel depicting Biblical scenes, and reveals the naked limbs of Hercules and Apollo, the draped forms of Juno and Minerva; Junglinster, with its fine frescoes and funerary stones in the village church; the Mullerthal, where summer visitors in tulle and lace taunt the savagery of the countryside and a queer old character, in an American army shirt, strikes a photographic pose every time an auto stops; Diekirch, known for its environs, whose brewery overawes its schools and churches; Esch-sur-Sure, with its crimson geraniums hung in bright-green baskets against salmon-pink walls—all have their devotees.

None of them so appeals as the land itself, behind whose placid beauty there is a peculiar fascination. The countryside, never twice the same, has a general uniformity, except for the regions where cliffs inspired the chateau builders. Soft slopes, crazy-quilted by crops, swell upward toward dense woods of pine or beech, among which some tiny Christian chapel, now largely deserted for a more accessible shrine, commemorates the site of a Druid place of worship. Simple steeples distinguish each group of whitewashed houses, whose old thatched roofs have mostly given way to fireproof tiles of tin.

Throughout the country the women work in the fields, wearing just such sunbonnets as our mothers wore. Young children are taken out into the open, sometimes in a basket strapped to the mother's back. During the day the towns are almost deserted.

Matinee for D. A. R. Benefit

A special matinee performance of "Kempy" for the benefit of the Daughters of the American Revolution of this district will be staged by the Elverhoj Players at the Elverhoj Art Club Theatre at Milton-on-Hudson on Wednesday afternoon, July 28, at 2:30 o'clock. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance of members of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., of this city.

Was Blackjacked, Chauffeur Said

This afternoon a young Italian with a bad gash on his head called at the office of Dr. Decker in Port Ewen and had the wound dressed and told a somewhat startling story. He said he was driving three Italians from Fleischmanns to New York city and that when in front of the Christian place in Ulster Park tire trouble occurred and one of the passengers wanted him to stop in the middle of the road and change the tire. He said he refused as he did not care to block traffic and he hauled up along side of the road and stopped the car. As he did so one the passengers used a blackjack on him. He got in touch with State Troopers who placed under arrest the Italian who the chauffeur claimed used the blackjack. The other two Italians in the car were also held. What disposition was made of the cases was not ascertained as the affair happened as The Freeman was going to press.

Used Spray to Paint Barn.

Milton, July 26.—A new way of painting buildings was demonstrated here last week by W. W. Innis of Orange Lake. The barn on S. Birdsall Taber's place was used in showing how painting could be done with a spray painter. The paint was forced through the spray and into the wood by an air compressor with a pressure of seventy-five pounds. With this method a house can be painted by two men in four or five hours.

Levinson Suit in Orange County

Place of Trial Transferred From Ulster County in $50,000 Damage Suit Brought by Ellenville Man Against Newburgh Merchants.

A two-year-old action, asking $50,000 for alleged malicious prosecution, brought by Hyman Levinson of Ellenville against Levinson & Siverts, Newburgh produce merchants, was revived in special term of Supreme court here on Friday, says the Newburgh News, when Henry Hirschberg, for the defendants, gained a change of venue. Brought in Ulster county, the case, if it is ever tried, will be heard by an Orange county jury by direction of Justice Seeger.

Echo of Bad Check Case.

The suit is an echo of a police court case wherein Abraham Levinson and William Siverts, on August 7, 1924, in the Newburgh police court charged Hyman Levinson with having passed a check for $1,000 in purchase of produce, the paper being valueless. The then recorder, Jacob A. Decker, dismissed the case on the law.

The defendants deny malice in their answer to the latest suit, claiming the police court charge was legitimate and was unsuccessful only because of an erroneous view of the case by the city judge. The dismissal, they contend, was not on the facts in the case, and they argue, through Mr. Hirschberg, that the police court happenings continued on into the higher tribunals when Levinson, the present plaintiff, was indicted by the October, 1924, grand jury, for larceny. The indictment was subsequently dismissed by a Supreme court justice.

Frank W. Brooks of Kingston is Hyman Levinson's attorney. He was not present Friday and the order granting the change of venue will not be entered until he has been notified. It is evident from Mr. Hirschberg's latest move that the defendants seek either a speedy trial or dismissal of the complaint.

HOW

SOME OF MOST POPULAR FLOWERS WERE NAMED.—One of the most popular single flowers among patrons of florists, as well as among the fortunate recipients of the florist's wares, says the Mentor Magazine, is the fragrant carnation.

The origin of this name indicates that it means "flesh color," for it can be traced through the French to the Latin caro (carn-), meaning "flesh." The form of the word carnation is patterned after the Italian carnagione, "skin color." In the Sixteenth century carnations were also called "incarnations" and "coronations." It may be seen, then, that the carnation was so named because of its color.

Gladiolus comes from the Latin diminutive of the word for "sword lily." The rhododendron was named from two Greek words, signifying "rose tree." Phlox is literal Greek for "flame" (from the color of some of the flowers) and corresponds to the German flammenblume, or "flame flower." Aster is literal Latin for "star," and survives in English in asterisk, which is the name for the "star mark" in typography (*).

The daisy was named after the sun or "day's eye," coming from Anglo-Saxon words of that significance. A heliotrope is a flower that, from the Greek derivation of its name, "turns toward the sun"—in other words, it is a botanical sun dial. Chrysanthemum comes from the Greek words meaning "gold flower."

How Shot Is Turned Out in Shot Towers

The process of manufacturing the shot commences with hoisting up the lead by an endless chain or windlass driven by steam. It is then melted in kettles at the various dropping stations, alloyed and prepared for dropping. An iron handle or holder is then hung over the hatchway, which is open from bottom to top, and in this handle is placed a box, with the bottom perforated with holes of the size of shot to be manufactured. The descending streams separate into globules of exactly spherical form, which are cooled by their passage through the atmosphere, and finally fall into a reservoir of water. From the water tank the shot is raised by a ladle, or machinery, and passes into the dryer, where it is thoroughly dried, and thence to the polishing cask, or cylinder, where a little black lead is added and a swift rotary motion soon produces a high polish. There are some half a dozen shot towers in this country, consuming annually from 150,000 to 300,000 kegs of lead and turning out 5,000 tons of shot.

How Lightning Is Formed

The weather bureau says that when lightning is about to occur between a cloud and the earth (it usually occurs between different parts of the same cloud) there is a great accumulation of electricity of one kind, usually the negative, at the surface of the earth, and of the opposite kind in the lower portion of the cloud. This imposes an electric strain on the medium between the two. The break, or discharge, consisting essentially of a flow of negative electricity, or electrons, toward the positive charge, may begin at any one point in midair along the path, and progress (this break progress) in both directions at the same time, or it may begin at either end and from there progress toward the other.

How Loud Is Niagara?

It is noisier at Niagara falls than it is on New York's busiest corner. This is the verdict of scientists who recently measured the roar of the great falls. The two noisiest places around the falls were at Prospect point and in front of the Cave of the Winds. At these points the noise measurement was 70 units, which is regarded as deafening. The measure of the noise at the corner of Sixth avenue and Thirty-fourth street in New York is 55 units, according to the same instruments.—Exchange.

How Corn Caused Tear Flow

A constant rain of tears from the eye of Paul Winas, a small boy of Humboldt, Kan., was stopped when doctors probed a lump at the corner of the eye. The swelling proved to be caused by a kernel of corn, the point of which rested against the tear duct. It was recalled that the youth was struck in the eye with an ear of corn last summer, but nothing was thought of it at the time. He lost the sight of the other eye several years ago when struck with a brick.

How Sea Birds Drink

When sea birds are flying far out over the ocean, sometimes hundreds of miles away from land where there is fresh water, they must have some way of quenching their thirst. This they do by hovering about beneath a rain cloud and drinking in the drops as fast as they come down. An old skipper relates that these birds will smell a rain coming, though it is a hundred miles away, and make straight for it.

Bouts at Fair Grounds Tuesday

Charlie Fischer Meets Newburgh Boxer in Main Bout—Other Bouts, Battle Royal and Watermelon Contest on Program.

The second of a series of smokers and entertainments will be given at the Fair Grounds Tuesday evening which will include twenty-four rounds of snappy boxing bouts, a battle royal and a watermelon eating contest. There is sure to be plenty of fun packed in the program for as lively a time is planned as was provided at the first smoker. The first bout will go on at 8:30.

Charlie Fischer will meet Jack Pilus of Newburgh in the main scrap of the evening. This fight is scheduled to go six rounds and is sure to be fast with these two scrappers in the ring together. Fisher met Werner at the first smoker and made the mattle interesting and consequently Pilus and Fisher will no doubt provide their share of the excitement Tuesday evening.

Vince Hart of East Kingston will also meet Billy Ames of Newburgh in six rounds of fistic warfare. Billy Leitz of New Paltz who made his debut in the ring at the first smoker and proved he had plenty of power and speed for a beginner will mix it up with Young Walcott of Newburgh in a four round melee. Two local lads, "Frenchy" De Wigg and Young Carpini are scheduled to go four rounds in the squared circle. The Pickaninny Twins, of Newburgh will go four rounds in the preliminary bout. This pair weigh in at 90 pounds. A watermelon contest is also on the program. The battle royal always proves to be one of the big items on the program so six lads will go in the ring Tuesday night and try their best to damage each other.

BERNIE McCUE LEADING HOME RUN HITTER

Bernie McCue, Colonial third baseman, pulled a new trick in the game with the Sheridan Caseys Sunday afternoon by hitting two home runs the same day. McCue is the first Colonial to do this deed this season and he also leads the local stickmen at knocking circuit clouts with 7 home runs to his credit. Ted Kelly follows with 4 circuits and the others who have hit for four bases are: Karis 2, Smith 2, Phelps 1, Deegan 1, and Rossback 1 which makes a total of 18 home runs for the Kingston aggregation.

As I look upon the lives of men it seems to me that more fail to make a success of living through delay than through haste, and what is called prudence results in more disappointments than what is called daring. There is always some hazard in life, and there must be, if life is to have any accomplishment.—Mackenzie.

THE BALANCED RATION

To know the relative value of different foods and different dishes, will keep one from serving one day a menu in which all dishes are high in food value and the next day a menu altogether of the less nutritive dishes. It is preferable to take the day as a unit in planning menus rather than a single meal, for in this way it is easier to keep the fuel standard about the same each day.

Concentrated foods which are mostly in the protein and fat groups, should be combined with the starchy foods. One part protein to three parts starchy foods is the most common proportion.

Cheese, a highly concentrated food without waste, when combined with rice, macaroni or potatoes, makes a good main dish and is highly nourishing.

Sugar in the form of candy is another concentrated food and should not be eaten on an empty stomach as it is sufficiently satisfying to spoil the appetite for a meal. Eaten at the close of a meal when we enjoy a little sweet we are not likely to overeat.

Avoid grouping in one day, and especially at the same meal, such foods as roast pork, fried foods, plum pudding and rich pastries; these are difficult of digestion and taken one at a time can be easily managed.

Soups having stimulating properties put the stomach into better condition to digest the food which follows. A cream soup is best to precede a light meal. A clear soup which has little nutrition but is an appetizer is good for a heavy dinner.

Salads and vegetables should always have place in the dinner and luncheon menus, and in the spring and summer are especially important.

Crisp, tender vegetables stimulate the appetite by their crispness and tenderness.

Diagram of Circuit Employed in a Center-Tapped Coil on the Radio-Frequency Stage.

By R. S. DORNBROCK,
In the Chicago Evening Post.

It is the purpose of the writer to herein point out the application to a well-known type of reflex circuit of a circuit modification long known but little used.

This is the use of a center-tapped coil in the radio-frequency stage, the lower terminal of which is connected to one of the small midget condensers, the opposite side of this midget condenser being connected to the plate terminal of the tube.

This circuit modification is probably most used in certain superheterodyne circuits, wherein a center-tapped loop is employed in connection with the midget condenser "to obtain regenerative action." Then again we see circuit diagrams showing the same arrangement in a tuned radio-frequency circuit, where it is described as "the Rice method of neutralization."

Cuts Out "Blanket" Stations.

A diagram of this circuit modification is shown in Figure 1. Whatever its action, the point is that it exerts a most beneficial influence upon the reflex circuit.

In the circuit set up by the writer, selectivity was very greatly increased, local stations which covered from 15 to 25 degrees in the regular arrangement were made to cover only 4 or 5 degrees on the dial. This was in a location about ten miles from the nearest station, and on an antenna 100 feet long with 85-foot lead-in.

In another location nearer to the bulk of the stations, and on an antenna 75 feet long with 80-foot lead-in, locals were confined to 2 or 3 degrees on the dials, excepting one which was only a few blocks away. This station operates on 250 meters, and blanketed about everything below it on a straight-line frequency condenser, but slightly below 300 meters even this station could be entirely eliminated. All stations above were received excellently.

...ap Is Only Change.

A diagram of the circuit employed is shown in Fig...e 2. Nearly every one possessing a set employing the circuit which is shown modified in this diagram will recognize it. It has been very popular and the modification outlined in this diagram will help it perform more efficiently in an area where a great majority of sets will pick up at least a couple of stations at once. This circuit is noted for its great volume and low operating upkeep, but in its original form tunes a little too broadly for efficient service.

No information of a technical nature is given, as those of the listening fraternity who do their own tinkering will understand from the diagram exactly what is to be done. No changes in apparatus need be made excepting to bring a center tap from the antenna tuning coil secondary.

Controls by Midget Condenser.

The midget condenser should be located on the panel, since it provides an excellent volume control.

Incidentally, the writer has observed in very recent issues of various radio magazines that this method of controlling radio-frequency is being quite frequently advocated.

Your Grid Leak and Its Important Duty

The action of the grid leak seems to be little understood by the average fan. Great care may have been taken in wiring up the set and in buying the best of parts. Yet when the receiver is put into operation the results secured are very poor. Very often the whole trouble lies in the grid leak, which may not be of the correct value or may be noisy in operation.

To make the action of the grid leak clear we will compare it to the carburetor on an automobile. The carburetor vaporizes or breaks up the gasoline, then mixes it with a certain proportion of air to form an explosive mixture. The supply of air taken into the carburetor is regulated by a choke valve. The carburetor of a radio receiver is the detector tube and the choke valve is the grid leak.

If the choke valve on the carburetor is closed too much, it does not allow enough air to enter and makes the mixture rich with the result that the motor chokes up or may stop altogether. If the grid leak is of such a value that it allows too high a negative charge to accumulate on the grid the tube chokes or paralyzes and the set will not operate or operates very poorly. This is the same effect as when the choke valve on the carburetor is closed too far and does not allow enough air to enter.

If, on the other hand, the grid leak is of such a value that the negative charge on the grid leaks off too rapidly the receiver loses its sensitivity. You can readily see, therefore, that it is important that the size of the grid leak be correct so that the amount of energy the grid can handle is always just right. Use a good-quality grid leak. Secure three or four different sizes and try them out until you find one that gives the best results. Do not try to save money by buying a cheap grid leak or one made by an unknown manufacturer, for very often a poor grid leak is the unsuspected cause of poor or noisy reception.

Shield Transformers

When your tuned radio-frequency receiver oscillates so readily it is hard to tune, try shielding the R. F. transformers by inclosing them in a metal box. Intercoupling probably is the trouble with the set.

Prevents Damage

Ammonia or soda water, quickly applied, will prevent damage from acid dropped while taking a hydrometer reading of the "A" battery.

When the Tubes May Be Cause of Your Trouble

When you notice that your radio set is losing in volume, the distant stations fade and disappear, and the quality sounds like a rock crusher, what do you do?

Very likely you look for poor connections, test the batteries or possibly replace them, change the tubes around, add a "C" battery and juggle grid leaks. And to discover? Probably, that the quality remains as poor as before. What next?

Under such perplexing circumstances did you ever give the tubes a thought? Tubes do not last indefinitely. Gradual deterioration of their filaments ultimately results in poor reception. The filament of a tube may still burn, but the coating put on its surface to aid emission of electrons—those tiny particles which give the tube its "life"—eventually disappears. When the coating vanishes the radio set loses its sensitivity and volume and may become very noisy. It is then time to buy new tubes.

When Buying Your "B" Battery Eliminator

It is important when buying a "B" battery eliminator to determine whether or not the device is capable of supplying enough current to operate the set, for if it does not distortion will result. To test the capacity of a "B" battery eliminator connect it to the receiver with which it is to be used and connect a high-resistance voltmeter across its terminals. If, when a loud signal is tuned in, the pointer of the voltmeter remains almost stationary at a voltage which is sufficient to properly operate the set, the device will prove satisfactory.

Electric Machines Are Notorious Intruders

X-ray machines are notorious generators of vagrant radio waves that make themselves audible in near-by receiving sets as harsh, grumbling noises. The small portable "violet ray" affairs sold for home electro-therapeutic treatment are also bad offenders and their use during evening hours should be as limited as possible.

Worth Knowing

An insulated wire will pick up the broadcast programs just as easily as a bare wire, as the waves penetrate the covering without the least difficulty. If the lead-in is insulated it will act as a part of the aerial.

Use FREEMAN advertising regularly and conservatively and results will surely follow.

AMERICANS GRANTED DIVORCES AT PARIS

Paris, July 26.—The Seine Tribunal today granted a divorce to Mrs. Wilhelmina Friedlander Arndt, from her husband, Walter Arndt, New York publicist and writer on historical and civic subjects. The Arndts were married in New York on April 17, 1915.

Mrs. Maurice Lincoln Bower, the former Ada Thompson Lewis, was granted a divorce from her husband. The Bowers were married in Washington in 1918.

A divorce was also granted to Mrs. Clare Kelly, the former Zola Price. The Kellys were married in Baltimore in 1925.
